Over Crestwood firings

Teacher unions ponder strike actions

By MARILYN FITCHETT

PLYMOUTH—Plymouth students may be facing an extended Christmas vacation in the wake of the mass firing of 207 Crestwood school teachers.

The Plymouth Education Association is one of 16 Western Wayne County teacher unions which signed a Michigan Education Association-coordinated agreement vowing support for teachers fired for refusing to abandon the picket line.

PEA President Dolly Carter hinted at the walkout, saying, "You're only as good as your word."

"The ground rules for the strikes still have to be decided, but I expect the rules will be worked out within a week," she said.

NEARLY 50 UNION representatives gathered Monday at the MEA North Wayne office to map strategy for their response to the Crestwood situation.

According to George Trudell, executive director of the North Wayne office, "at least 16 districts in Western Wayne County will be affected by the Crestwood firings."

Trudell would not discuss which districts would be struck but indications point to the 16 districts signing the support agreement before the opening of school.

Trudell refused to say when the strikes might begin. But he said, "they will not take place on Thursday when some of the districts return from Christmas vacations."

Asked about the effects of no-strike clauses in existing contracts, Trudell said, "I would have to say that the teachers feel that the Crestwood issue is far greater an issue than the no-strike violation.

"I would expect a strike to last as long as the Crestwood situation is not resolved in the minds of the teachers."

TRUDELL OBJECTED to labeling of the proposed walkout as a sympathy strike.

"I wouldn't call it a sympathy strike for the Crestwood teachers," he said. "It would be a strike supporting collective bargaining.

"The teachers feel that if Crestwood can fire their teachers, then other districts might try to do the same. They want to demonstrate their right to bargain."

Trudell contended that the firing of 91 per cent of the Crestwood teachers will not accomplish anything.

"This is potentially a volatile situation," he said. "But the only way anything will be settled is for both parties to sit down and bargain."

Trudell said Monday that no new bargaining sessions had been arranged between Crestwood union officials and the board.

CRESTWOOD SUPT. Robert Rutila has even questioned the district's legal right to conduct bargaining sessions with dismissed personnel.

Rutila has admitted to conducting interviews with at least 38 potential teachers and said he would continue to meet with job candidates.

Fired Crestwood teachers and other MEA members continued to picket at Crestwood. Trudell said the strikers would try to dissuade job seekers from entering Crestwood administration offices.

"I think the teachers might suggest that perhaps Crestwood isn't the best place to work," he said.

Crestwood, located in north Dearborn Heights, has been plagued with labor strife nearly every year for the past 10.

Crestwood teachers who had struck in September but returned to the classroom in October, resumed their strike three weeks ago. They have been working without a contract since August of 1973.

Thirteen Crestwood teachers have paid $200 fines rather than be sent to jail on contempt of court charges arising from the strike.

Friday the Crestwood school board authorized Rutila to begin screening teacher candidates. The board informed teachers of their dismissal by mail.

The 16 districts signing the pact to support other striking teachers included Garden City, Wayne-Westland, South Redford, Redford Union, Plymouth, Crestwood, Westwood, Southgate, Allen Park, Gibraltar, Wyandotte, River Rouge, Dearborn Heights District Seven, Woodhaven, Riverview and Van Buren.

LINES LIKE THESE which appeared in front of Garden City and Crestwood schools may be cropping up in Plymouth and other districts throughout the Detroit area, if pledges of sympathy strikes in these districts are firmed up. Representatives from 17 school districts have been mapping plans this week for unified action in the wake of the firing of teachers in the Crestwood School District in Dearborn Heights. Tungate named to county post

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP—"I've played around in politics a long time as a hobby, but now I'll find out what it's like to work in a governmental position," explains Orville Tungate, newly appointed deputy clerk of Wayne County.

Tungate, 45, got the nod from Clerk James R. Killeen after Killeen was named to replace Joseph B. Sullivan, who was elected to the Circuit Court in November.

The appointments are for two years, as Sullivan has completed half of his term as county clerk.

Killeen and Tungate are "old friends," having met in the campaign to elect John Kennedy president in 1960. But the big factor in Tungate's appointment was his managerial ability, says Killeen.

"HE INTERVIEWED quite a few people after he got the job in November. The primary criterion was administrative ability, and I think that's why I was chosen" explains Tungate. "I manage a firm now with 150 people, and I think he liked my management capacity."

Despite the fact that Tungate was general manager of Keyline Airfreight Company, the new post will not mean a reduction in pay. The deputy clerk position pays $25,000 annually.

Tungate's biggest hobby has been politics and he has been at it since 1953 when he became a Democratic precinct delegate. Since then he has run unsuccessfully for numerous township offices, his most serious effort for the job of supervisor in 1959.

His recent politicking has been "mostly to make sure there is a Democrat running for the office."

In 1972 he was a delegate for McGovern, and in November he ran for township trustee.

THE NEW DEPUTY clerk lives at 13887 Ridgewood Drive and has been a township resident for many years. The father of six children, he has served as president of the Detroit Air Cargo Association, and on the aviation advisory board of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce. Presently, he is a member of the Plymouth Community Board of Education's board of election review.

Tungate views his role as deputy clerk as one in which he will handle "mostly the day-to-day stuff. I intend to try and interject some business management techniques into the clerk's office, although that may be hard because of the union."

Nonetheless, Tungate is anxious to start. He explains, "I am really looking forward to it."

Most merchants report

Christmas buying remained stable

By DARLENE STINSON

Although business did not boom in the Plymouth-Canton area this Christmas season, sales at most stores compared favorably this year to past holiday seasons.

Because prices of many Christmas gifts were higher this year, fewer sales netted the same amount of profit for many store owners, despite massive layoffs and a dismal economic outlook.

Spokesmen for six of 10 stores surveyed said sales were about the same this year and last, while three said sales were down, and one cited an increase in Christmas sales.

"Dollar-wise our sales were pretty much the same as last year," said Fred Hill, owner of John Smith Men's and Boy's Wear, 336 S. Main, Plymouth. "We're not complaining. With the snow, things came a little late, but the last week before Christmas was pretty hectic.

"We anticipated sales to be off considerably," Hill said, "so things turned out better than we expected. We expected people to buy less expensive items, but, as it turned out, that didn't happen."

Clothing sales at Kay's of Plymouth, 846 W. Ann Arbor Trail, were "surprisingly good," according to manager Doris Zecchin.

"The first week (of the Christmas shopping season) was horrible with the big snow and the weather and everything," Mrs. Zecchin said. "But I think we ended up pretty close to last year. Of course, that depends on the returns. Sales were not quite comparable to last year, but we're not drowning. We're holding our heads above water."

Herbert Chaicken, president of Minerva's-Dunning's, 500 Forest, Plymouth, said the dollar value of clothing sales at his store compare favorably to last year.

"People aren't spending as much," Chaicken noted, "and sales were a lot smaller."

Plant sales at Graye's Greenhouse, 8820 Lilley, Plymouth Township, and at Stein Flower Shop, 42158 Michigan, Canton Township, were as good as last year, according to store owners, as were sales at Beitner Jewelry, 904 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

"Actually we were very busy this year," said jewelry store owner Fred Beitner. "A lot of people received money for Christmas, and they're buying right now. In reality, the Christmas season is still going on. We expect buying to go on for another week or so."

Sales at Famous Men's Wear, 924 W. Ann Arbor Trail, do not paint as bright a picture.

"I don't have the exact figures," said manager Bill Hall, "but sales are down. It (business) doesn't seem to have the zip of the past. People are buying, but not as promiscuously. People are looking."

Hall attrubutes the slump to higher clothing prices and a plummeting economy.

"That's the only thing I can think of," he said.

Instrument sales at Arnoldt Williams Music, 5701 Canton Center, Canton Township, were "a little down" this Christmas, said owner Janice Williams.

"This year was just a little down for the month of December," Mrs. Williams said. "It wasn't very much. We're keeping busy. We can't complain."

Neither did Beautiful Things, 620 Starkweather, Plymouth, sell as many gift items for Christmas this year.

"The buying month of Christmas wasn't as high as last year," said owner Cynthia Trevino. "People were trying to be a little more practical because of the economic pinch. We sell decorative items— nothing practical. I think that was part of the problem."

Ernest Weiler, manager of The Cricket Box, 44461 Ann Arbor Road, said sales at his store, which sells china, crystal and other kitchen items, were up.

"Our sales have increased," Weiler said. "The only observation I could make was that people were buying less luxury and more practical items."

Weiler attributes the jump in sales at his store to the establishment of a free gift wrapping service.

Canton leaders offer mixed predictions

By ROBERT GREENSTEIN
Canton Township Supervisor

I have been asked by the Observer & Eccentric to give some year-end predictions as to how I see 1975 affecting Canton Township and the people who live within its borders.

I am afraid that the federal government may panic because of the strange combination of recession and inflation that we are experiencing in our economy and, as usual, dump tons of money into the economy in order to alleviate some of the recession problems—forgetting completely about the unbelievable inflation which has also confronted our nation.

The unfortunate results may be as much as a 25 to 35 per cent inflation rate in September and October of 1975. If this be the case, we shall not then be very far away from 1929 all over again.

"The unfortunate results may be as much as a 25 to 35 per cent inflation rate..."
-- Robert Greenstein

ON THE LOCAL scene, your new administration has been working hard in the short three weeks it has been in office and believe it has made some substantial accomplishments. However, this article is to concern predictions for the coming year and so I shall just list the following:

We hope that in the year 1975, the administration will accomplish substantial tax breaks for the farmers so as to encourage the continuation of open space and farming in our community.

We hope to make great progress on a Farmers' Market and, with some

Canton Chamber of Commerce President

The outlook for 1975 is that it will not necessarily be a banner year, but a good year. The next few months may well be filled with exceptional bargains for the buying public, with merchants adjusting their inventories.

The brakes are now being applied on price increasing. I urge everyone in a position to purchase commodities of any kind to have faith in our country and community and do so in the next few months.

I am disappointed and upset with the tremendous amount of gloom that is being dispensed by most everyone. Yes, we are in an economic unsettled period and we are quick to point the finger at industry, government, business or labor organizations as the cause. And they in turn are pointing the finger at one another.

"I urge everyone in a position to purchase commodities of any kind to have faith in our country..."
-- Bart Berg

I OBSERVE SIGNS in the community calling for 30 hours of work for 40 hours pay, and statements by executives that our president should stop biting at the problem with marshmallow teeth.

It has happened, so regardless of what caused it, now is the time as citizens of a good community to reevaluate our own lives and activities. Did we contribute to the economic problem by the way we manage our own affairs?

For 100 hours service

Northville center set to honor volunteer aides

Four individuals and three organizations that have contributed more than 100 hours of service to the Northville Residential Training Center will be honored Sunday, Jan. 5 at 2 p.m.

The gathering will be held in the center, located adjacent to the Northville State Hospital on Seven Mile Road. Dr. Don K. Worden, head of the center, will present the awards, and the Northville Association for Retarded Children and Adults will serve coffee and cookies.

Cathy Johnson, Livonia Stevenson High School student who works in the occupational therapy classes at the center, is one of the volunteers who has put in 100 hours.

The others are Alvin LaCroix of Plymouth, Joan Ramsey, another high school student who lives in Farmington, and Robert Randall of Ann Arbor.

Organizations that have members whose volunteer work totals more than 100 hours are the Lamp Lighters, a group from Redford Baptist Church, the GM Girls' Club and the Jaycettes of District 30, which has members from Westland, Livonia, Garden City, Northville, Plymouth and other areas.

The volunteer program at the center began last March 17, and since then some 40 volunteers have given more than 1,300 service hours.

They assist in classes in occupational therapy, language training, swimming, bowling, physical education, arts and crafts, and domestic arts.

Those who volunteer take orientation classes for eight hours and then select the service area they prefer. The program is open to all 15 years and older.

Volunteers still are needed in many areas. While much of the help is needed between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, there are opportunities for assistance seven days a week, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Those interested may call Dolly V. LaCroix, volunteer services coordinator, at the Northville Residential Training Center, 41001 W. Seven Mile.

CATHY JOHNSON of Livonia has put in more than 100 hours volunteer service in the Northville Residential Training Center.

Still time to register

Registration for day and evening credit classes being taught at Schoolcraft College or at its instructional center in Garden City are being accepted through Jan. 16.

On Jan. 7-8, late registrations will be taken in the auxiliary gym on campus at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia. After that, registration will be taken in the student affairs office. The hours are 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. with the exceptions of lunch (11:30-1) and dinner (3:30-6:30) hours.

Full time students who register late are charged a $10 fee, and part-time students $2.50 per class.

The Game Club replaces former drug addict group

A group of local residents has banded together and formed the Game Club of Michigan to replace Synanon Foundation Inc. which recently closed its doors in Detroit.

This group of "squares" (non-addicts) has now been licensed by Synanon Foundation to act as an intake center for persons in the Michigan area who need Synanons help.

SERVICE AS a Synanon Intake Center at 20729 Seven Mile in northwest Detroit, volunteers have already sent over a dozen drug addicts and character-disordered persons to Synanons west coast facilities.

Besides the intake center, the Game Club of Michigan operates a Synanon game club open to all who wish to learn abou the Synanon philosophy of self-betterment.

Robert Altman, director of the newly formed Detroit affiliate, explains: "Our game club is made up of factory workers, executives, teachers, students, housewives, politicians, blacks, whites, Jews, Gentiles, young and old.

"They have come to our club from as far as Lansing and Toledo. It's an exciting atmosphere that we wish to make known to all willing to listen."

BEGINNING Saturday, Jan. 4, and on the first Saturday of each month, the Game Club will have an 8 p.m. open house party for all who care to come.

The club also provides an interesting program of speakers and film explanation about the history and productivity of Synanon.

Fraternal, social, church and business organizations are invited to request these programs about Synanon's "people business."

In future months, the Game Club of Michigan will expand its numbers by opening membership rolls so more may participate by playing the Synanon Game (Synanon's own brand of encounter group).

The intake center also expects a continually growing list of persons seeking the new life-style available to them in one of Synanon's California communities.

Misunderstood orders caused 1907 wreck

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT
by
Sam Hudson

On July 20, 1907, shortly after 9 a.m., an eastbound Pere Marquette train, filled with passengers from Ionia, hurtled around a sharp curve and into a steep embankment four miles west of Plymouth.

At the same moment, a six-car freight train, heading west, entered the cut on the same track. They met head-on, creating one of the major railroad wrecks in the history of the United States.

The events leading to the tragedy began early on a Saturday morning. Conductor Hamilton, in charge of the freight, received orders to take his train on the main line toward Salem. Some of the cars contained gravel to be dumped enroute.

Hamilton read the orders. He handed them to the rest of his crew to read. Engineer Wilson Rogers read the orders and climbed into the cab.

THIS IS WHAT happened from then on!

8:49 a.m. The freight train pulled out of the Plymouth yards and headed for Rathburn's Crossing.

9:05 a.m. Two carloads of gravel were dumped just east of the crossing. The train proceeded toward Salem.

9:10 a.m. A special excursion train, consisting of 10 passenger coaches and a baggage car, pulled out of Salem and headed toward Plymouth. The crew included conductor E.J. Pixley, engineer Alvard, fireman Charles Knowles and brakeman Ed Cowan.

The train had originated at Ionia, where the Pere Marquette Railroad had a large car repair shop. Some 800 railroad employees, their families and friends, aboard the train, were headed for Detroit, where a boat had been chartered to take them to Belle Isle for their annual picnic.

9:12 a.m. Nine-year-old Clyde Smith and his father Edward were hoeing potatoes on the farm they rented from Will Thayer, on Six Mile about three-fourths of a mile north of the railroad tracks. They saw the trains approach Van Side cut from opposite directions. The cut is about a quarter mile east of the Napier Road crossing where Robert Willoughby was injured by a train a few years ago. The Smiths stood transfixed as the trains rushed toward each other.

AT THAT MOMENT, a recent graduate of the eighth grade in Ionia, Ethel Connor (later Mrs. Robert Jolliffe of Plymouth) was riding backward in the front seat of a coach next to the smoker. Ethel and two companions carried basket lunches for the picnic. Thoughts of the picnic were suddenly shattered by the shrill blast of whistles, the grinding of wheels, and a deafening crash as the two locomotives smashed into each other.

The wooden coaches collapsed like matchwood, huge splinters shooting out in all directions. The hiss of escaping steam drowned out the screams of passengers.

Ethel, knocked unconscious, recovered quickly. Her back hurt, but she was able to move. Steam was filling the coach. Ethel and her two companions pushed a window open. The coach they were in had telescoped on top of the smoker. The girls dropped to the roof of the smoker and jumped to the ground.

By this time, Clyde Smith and his father had arrived at the 20-foot embankment. It was a jumbled mass of passenger and freight cars. The six leading coaches were piled one on top of another. People were crawling out of doors and windows. The Smiths, Jim Spencer, and others from nearby farmhouses, began to pull the injured from the wreckage. One dying man begged to be shot.

Uninjured passengers, who had recovered from the initial shock, improvised coach doors as stretchers and began to move the dead and injured.

Approx. 9:30 a.m. Someone phoned Plymouth, asking that all physicians be dispatched to the scene. Doctors Patterson, Kimble, Kenyon and Knight, with several women to assist, rushed to the Plymouth depot where a special train took them to the wreckage.

By the time the doctors arrived, 28 of the dead had been lined up with their heads along the south fence. Most of those killed had been in the smoker which was next to the locomotive. Some of the injured were taken to nearby farm houses, including that of James Boyle, a quarter-mile north of the wreck. Some were cared for in the rear coaches of the train. The Plymouth doctors went about, administering emergency treatment.

11:30 a.m. A special train, carrying doctors, nurses and medical equipment pulled out of Fort Street station in Detroit. Aboard the train was Iva Bentley, whose people owned a restaurant in Plymouth.

Noon: Fourteen-year old Ezra Rotnour, of Plymouth, jumped on his bicycle and pedalled to the wreck. He parked his bike near a cemetery and clambered down the embankment. When he reached the spot where the two locomotives were still locked in deadly embrace, Ezra saw a brass plate bearing the number of one of the locomotives. He thought it would make a good souvenir to put on his bike. It was too heavy to carry so Ezra gave up the effort.

Seventeen-year old Walter Ebert, who worked at the Markham air rifle factory, left the plant at noon and walked to the wreck. Ebert was one of many in Plymouth who never returned to work that day. When only six Markham employes showed up after lunch, Superintendent Ernie Roe closed the plant and followed his men to the Van Side cut.

(The story of the wreck will be concluded in Part II).

Editor:

Once again the public is subjected to the travesty of uninformed educational opinion. The tragedy is continually compounded by those who in their refusal to investigate the true facts of didactic procedure, only succeed in casting what is, at best, a slur on the educational background of innoccent children, who, contrary to such opinion love their school.

It is indeed a cruel paradox that a school which has become an educational lodestar to the universities of southeastern Michigan should be so totally misunderstood by members of its own community.

Miller teachers, some of the most dedicated by any standards and who are invited to lead many educational seminars, are nonetheless subjected to the ignorance of a few persons whose educational ideals have long since been formed and admit to no flexibility.

No defense of Miller School is required by leading Plymouth educators, or by the teachers, children and parents of the school. Who, then, are those who speak out so lavishly in their criticism? Possibly the criticism lies with those who have never visited Miller School in a careful way, nor availed themselves of an interview with the school's hard working, informed principal.

It is a pity, dear sir, that as an editor you should allow such distortion to go unnoticed and uncorrected.

Arson suspected in fire

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP—What is suspected as arson caused extensive damage to a house at 9050 Elmhurst early Friday morning.

Township Fire Chief James Gignac said he has evidence the fire was started to cover a breaking and entering of the house.

"The Gene Epperson family who live at the Elmhurst address, were out of town so there were no injuries," the chief said.

"We found the fire started in a bedroom closet area and have evidence to believe it was started to cover a robbery," he added.

The chief said "we have several good leads as to who was involved in what we feel certain was a deliberate fire."

U-M economists predict slow recovery

The current recession will hit bottom in the first quarter of 1975, and a slow recovery will begin in the spring with an upswing in automobile sales, residential building, real wages and disposable income. Unemployment, however, will continue torise.

Wishful thinking?

Not according to University of Michigan professors Saul H. Hymans and Harold T. Shapiro who made the predictions as part of their 1975 forecast at the opening of the university's 22nd annual Conference on the Economic Outlook.

Prepared annually by the U-M Research Seminar in Quantitative Economics, the forecast is based on the Michigan Quarterly Econometric Model, with a grant from the National Science Foundation.

ACCORDING to the forecast the professors expect the overall rate of inflation to decline to about six per cent by early 1976. Also anticipated are substantially lower rate of price increases and decelerating unit labor costs.

The pair explained that the initial phase of the recovery is dependent on a sharp turnaround in residential building.

"We expect housing starts to rise from a low point of about one million units (annual rate) to a two million unit rate in mid-1976," they said.

THE INITIAL PHASE of recovery is also dependent on a "substantial step-up in the volume of consumer purchases," they said. The forecast makes two assumptions:

First, that nominal income gains will not be eliminated by sharp and unexpected price increases; Second, the resumption of rising real incomes, with visible evidence of decelerating inflation, will reverse the effects of the current negative trend in consumer sentiment.

Plymouth Chamber optimistic

By JAMES B. McKEON
Plymouth Chamber of Commerce President

Traditionally all year-end comments look optimistically to the coming year. In spite of the current economic downturn which has hit so heavily in the Detroit metropolitan area, there is optimism in the Plymouth business community.

One cannot deny that business activity has declined in Plymouth, but look about in the city and in the township and you see new buildings under construction, old buildings being renovated to a more productive use, and above all, keen witted business people anticipating and planning for the buying surge that is bound to come.

THE CHAMBER of Commerce intends to match and promote this optimism with an extensive promotional and educational program in 1975. The chamber intends to expand their retail advertising program and to continue to respond constructively to local government actions pertaining to zoning, capital improvements, services and the general welfare of the community. The foregoing were two activities initiated by the chamber in 1974.

Chamber committees are now hard at work planning a series of sessions on subjects such as merchandising, rapid transit, alternatives to customer paid parking, shopping centers versus central business districts, and industrial development.

The chamber is also studying an extensive Michigan Week program which may kick off with a circus and a series of events to build the image of the community.

SURGING OLD VILLAGE will receive more attention from the chamber in the coming year. Old Village has always been a tremendous asset to the business community.

The chamber board of directors is composed of professional, business and industrial people from the community and is a strong common denominator between the township and the city. The chamber pledges to provide tangible improvements for the total community in 1975.

The chamber challenges the local units of government to work together to provide tangible improvements for the total community in 1975.

luck, move from the planning stages sometime in 1975.

We believe that we will accomplish a Post Office for Canton Township in 1975 which will more fully succeed with Canton's identity than any other endeavor.

WE HOPE TO JOIN together the senior citizens and the Jaycees of Canton Township in an effort to help the senior citizens and disadvantaged peoples with respect to their property taxes and rights to state tax refunds as well as establishing information for the tax Board of Review hearings.

In 1975, Canton Township should welcome a restrictive sign ordinance forbidding proliferation of signs throughout the township, a strong tree preservation ordinance, establishment of zoning signs announcing the filings of petitions to rezone on particular pieces of property, and the establishment of rural subdivisions containing larger lots, smaller streets with off-street parking and non-concrete roads which will encourage open space in our community.

If 1975 sees the end to the long and sometimes weary trail of obtaining sufficient property within the center of the township with which to establish a municipal center, 1976 might even develop into the year of real township facilities and real township services.

I wish you all a safe and satisfying New Year.

I am sure that industry is reevaluating its operation, its goals and projections, and its timetable for attaining those goals. The business community is doing the same. Government must also reevaluate its direction and its demands on the business and industrial sector of the country or community.

This leads me to believe that we as citizens must look at our own positions and ask ourselves: Have we been demanding too many and too much of the good things in life faster than government, industry, and business can economically provide them?

DURING THE economic low period may we all make an effort to broaden our abilities by taking advantage of the many programs being offered to further our education, skills, and trade, thus making it possible for us to be available for a greater variety of work opportunities.

Over the past few months, gloom and despair have been glorified through all our means of communication. I think this ought to be changed so that every word of gloom and despair that is uttered is matched with words of hope and encouragement and suggested methods of keeping our economy at a level and progressive pace instead of high and low periods.

We live in a good community. We live in a good state. We live in a good country. Let us all become more active in community affairs and projects so that those people who make decisions that affect our well-being, whether in government, industry, or business, will have the benefit of our thinking.

Police reserve training school expands to serve SE Michigan

REDFORD—A police reserve training seminar, originally planned for the training of Redford reserve police officers, has expanded into a training school for officers from numerous departments throughout southeast Michigan.

Capt. Albert B. Stewart of the Redford police reserves, is credited with starting the training program which last year attracted more than 300 reservists from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

REDFORD'S DEPUTY Chief Michael Manoog said the department realized the need for intensive training of its reserve officers and it was Stewart who suggested Redford ask other police departments if they would be interested in participating.

"The response was overwhelming," Manoog said. "We received applications for many more than we could accommodate."

The first seminar started in November 1973 and ran through August.

Stewart was elected executive director of the council 'ast year by a council made up of various police officials in the area.

"We are setting up bylaws and have applied for a state charter which we expect to receive within a week or so," Stewart said.

THE SECOND seminar will begin Fe . 6 and last for 30 weeks. Instead of meeting in Redford, the seminar this year will be conducted in conjunction with the Schoolcraft College Community Services program.

Instruction will be held in the Forum Building Theater on the campus each Thursday beginning at 7:30 p.m.

"We are expanding the seminar to accept officers from 10 counties in Michigan," Stewart said. "Subjects presented will be similar to those given regular officers attending area police academies and, in many cases, the instructors will be the same as those at academies."

Stewart said upon satisfactory completion of a minimum number of hours attendance and passing a written examination, graduates will be awarded two certificates, one from the council and one from Schoolcraft.

Instructors range from members of the FBI and the Michigan State Police to professionalss in criminal justice, judges and police officials.

Among the instructors are Manoog, Redford's Police Chief Edwin Gleza, Stewart, Chief Robert Behrendt of Garden City, Loren Pittman of the Wayne County Sheriff Dept., Lt. Eugene Weiler of the Michigan State Police Crime Lab in Plymouth, Sgt. Vi Mote of Redford and Redford District Judge Robert Brang.

Topics covered during the 30-week course include crowd and riot control, communications, courtroom procedure, report writing and community relations.

"Due to space limitations, class size this year is being limited to 125 students with enrollment on a first-come basis," Stewart said.

Tuition is $9 a person plus a $25 department registration fee for the group. Tuition covers all materials for the course.

THE COUNCIL'S advisors include Behrendt, Gleza, Sheriff William Lucas, Manoog and Sgt. John Santomauro of Farmington.

Stewart said the seminar has proven so successful it is expected to continue for years to come.

"We are able to give reserve officers invaluable training conducted by experts in individual fields."

Senior adult services expand at Schoolcraft

Improved programs and services for senior adults have been announced by Schoolcraft College for its winter semester.

The college will now provide tuition grants for senior adults taking either college or institutional credit programs, says Betty Andrews of the community service office.

To be eligible, senior adults must have registered with the college's senior adult program which Mrs. Andrews heads. Eligible are persons retired from full time employment, including unemployed sprouses or widows, and those adults not employed because of physical disability, who live within the Schoolcraft College District. The college district includes the Livonia, Clarenceville, Plymouth, Garden City and Northville school districts.

Registration for college credit classes is today (Thursday) and tomorrow. Institutional credit course registration begins Jan. 13 by mail and extends through the middle of February. The college is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads in Livonia.

Presentation of the senior adult student identification card enables the holder to be admitted and to register for classes through regular procedures.

Senior adults are also entitled to one free ticket for each event in the cultural and public affairs series, full library privileges, free admission to all college athletic events, and student admission rates to selected departmental activities.

Registered senior adults pay only fees, textbooks and other materials required for coursework.

STRUMMING AND PICKING are the speciality of Betty Lewis. (Staff photos by Bob Woodring.)

JOHN M. MURAWSKI proudly displays prints made by former students.

A STITCH IN TIME will soon give you a quilt like the one made by Ana Chinn for her daughter, Jennifer.

Strum, print or quilt at the Family Y

BY SHERRY KAHAN

She strums, he prints and she quilts.

Betty Lewis, John M. Murawski and Ana Chinn will all be teaching these skills during the winter term at the Livonia Family Y.

Mrs. Lewis, who lives in Livonia, will teach eight weeks of folk guitar to those 12 and older. Murawski, of Plymouth, will give instruction for six weeks in woodcuts and prints, and Ana Chinn a Livonia resident, will teach for six sessions what she calls an original American folk art, patchwork quilting.

In addition, classes will be taught in poetry writing for youngsters nine through 13, oil painting, cheerleading, drivers education and dried flower arranging, among others.

"After looking at the economic situation, we decided to shorten many courses to make them more affordable," says Linda Groundstaff, staff member of the Family Y. "We plan to maintain their quality. These classes are open both to Y members as well as non-members. But non-members will have to pay slightly more."

BETTY LEWIS, who has been teaching guitar for six years at the Family Y, says a beginning student will learn to play and sing a song during the first session. Later he will be introduced to several chord families.

"Students must have their own guitars," she explains. "If they plan to purchase or rent one, they should contact me or the Y so they pick out what is appropriate."

President of the Detroit Folk Lore Society, which tries to preserve traditional music and folk art, Mrs. Lewis believes that everyone is a potential guitarist.

"I have many students studying with me at home, who started in group sessions," she says. "We have fun in classes, but I treat them seriously too. I have made a number of good friends through teaching guitar.

"Teaching has been very rewarding, especially teaching women," notes Mrs. Lewis. "Many come in as a lark. Their husband has bought them a guitar as a kind of joke. Then they become very proficient. I know they like it because they return to take the four more advanced classes I teach."

JOHN MURAWSKI is proud of the woodcuts that his previous students have produced. In his classes he presents a basic history of woodcuts and other graphic arts.

He explains the gouge, the V-tool and the straight knife and materials such as inks and paper. Then everyone gets busy.

"I show beginners basic designs they can cut on the wood," he says. "I let them become used to wood and how the tools work against it. After they complete something, I print it for them so they can see what happens, so they can become aware of black and white.

"Later they make their own designs, drawing either directly on wood or on a piece of paper which they trace on the wood. They learn the initial struggle of doing the whole thing on their own.

"When finished I let each student apply printer's ink from a pallette to their block. They learn how to register the paper on the block or the other way around. Then we hand burnish the back side of the paper.

"Then they have the visual experince of what they have produced. I then critique it and noint out portions of their print that could be adjusted."

Superintendent of air freight for Keyline Air Freight, Murawski regards print-making as a hobby. He has taken 36 hours of art at Schoolcraft including eight hours in graphics.

"MANY PEOPLE have quilt tops that grandmother made which they would like to complete," says Ana Chinn, the Livonia Y's expert on patchwork quilting. "All the techniques necessary to complete such a quilt will be covered by the course."

Mrs. Chinn is just completing a large quilt for her small daughter. It is filled with patches to bring back happy memories in years to come. One patch was even sewed into place by Dad.

Adapting modern ways to this old folk art, Mrs. Chinn made this quilt on a small portable frame she can carry. She used dacron batting, making it possible for the quilt to be dunked into the washing machine and drier when necessary.

"My mother taught me to sew at the age of four," she recalls. "I made my first quilt for my parents the Christmas I was 13. Later on I was a home economics major and taught clothing and textiles in junior high schools.

"I enjoy seeing the revival of quilt-making because so many of the old crafts have gone by the wayside. I'm glad it's not going to be a lost art."

Mrs. Chinn has her students choose a pattern first and sew together patches by machine or by hand. Next the top, the filler and the backing are laid together.

"Then it is quilted (sewed) together," says Mrs. Chinn. "I stress hand-quilting because it is an art that is important to learn. The quilt will become an heirloom this way."

The last step is to bind the edges.

"Many quilters feel they have really done something they can pass down to their family because they have put so much time, effort and love into it," reports Mrs. Chinn.

Mrs. Chinn enjoys teaching about quilting history, looking fondly back to colonial times when every girl had to have 12 quilts.

"She couldn't get married until she and her friends had completed her baker's dozen quilt," she says.

Class registration planned Jan. 6, 7

Registration for winter classes at the Livonia Family Y will take place Jan. 6 for members and Jan. 7 for non-members.

Registration hours will be 9-11 a.m., 1-3 p.m. and 6-8 p.m.

Classes will be given in babysitting, baton twirling, cheerleading, folk guitar, drivers education and photography.

There will be a chess club, a Saturday fun club for youngsters and a kiddie play school for four and 5-year-olds. In addition the Y is sponsoring a ladies ski day, knitting and crocheting, experience in drama, macrame, poetry for youngsters nine-13, oil painting, quilting and woodcuts and prints.

Yoga for everyone is another course planned by the Y, along with dried flower arrangements, bread basket (art of preserving bread rolls and making baskets for centerpieces) and gesso (making decorative wall plaques from dried grasses, twigs etc.)

The program will begin the week of Monday, Jan. 13.

JEAN CHRISTENSEN

Women's resource center head

SC names Jean Christensen

BY SHERRY KAHAN

"I'm tickled to death," says Jean Christensen of Livonia concerning her new job as head of women's services and programs at Schoolcraft College. "This is where I have always wanted to work."

Mrs. Christensen, whose title will be assistant to the director of community services, will be filling the duties of Nancy Dufor, former head of the women's continuum.

Mrs. Dufour is now on the staff at Macomb County Community College.

"The women's area is expanding greatly now," says Mrs. Christensen. "There are options for women that have never been available or culturally acceptable before.

"I'm looking forward to being part of the women's resource center where we try to think in terms of non-traditional careers, and try to encourage women to identify which areas of work or study would be satisfying to them.

"WOMEN COME IN with a vague feeling of dissatisfaction, and we try to help them find what they are dissatisfied about. Then we show them alternatives."

In her new job, Mrs. Christensen is moving slowly. "I want to find out what has worked here and what hasn't," she said. "I want to learn about community needs so we can try to fill them."

One of her first tasks is to find volunteers for the women's resource center, women who will help other women make use of the information and counseling services available there.

THERE IS LITTLE the new head of women's services has to be told about the steps between homemaking and job holding. She has followed that well-beaten path taken by thousands of American housewives once they determined to launch themselves on the world.

"I think I will be able to relate to the women coming in here," says Mrs. Christensen. "Most of them are having the same experiences I had."

Once her four children were in school, Mrs. Christensen took a identity course, which gave her the encouragement she needed to go back to school.

"I had to give myself permission not to be a 24-hour mother," she notes. "In this class I learned that certain things I had assumed about myself were not true.

"I felt ineffective. But when I looked at my test scores and found what I had accomplished, I decided I could continue to accomplish things. So I set out to try."

MRS. CHRISTENSEN enrolled at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, where on a part-time basis she earned a master's degree in guidance and counseling.

"It was a growth period for me," she recalls. "I discovered capabilities I had that I had not been using."

One day on the way home from college she stopped in at Schoolcraft and applied for a job. "They took me on as an intern in their inservice training program," she says. "I worked at the counseling center, which I enjoyed very much."

But the job situation was tight at Schoolcraft, so Mrs. Christensen felt fortunate when she landed a position at the Detroit Institute of Technology, where she was a counselor in freshmen studies. Later she was named testing coordinator.

THEN CAME the chance at Schoolcraft.

"It's working with people I like," she says. "I can understand the problem of the mother who has home responsibilities and who also goes to school."

Mrs. Christensen reports that her family has been very supportive of her new career. "The children have jobs," she says. "It gives them a feeling of competence to be able to do household jobs, and they know it is a big help to me."

She is married to Leon Christensen, who operates a Livonia nursery. Their children are Holly, 18; Laurel, 16, and Peter, 11.

Expert to tell all about house plants

David B. Wood will attempt to strip away erroneous information associated with the growing of house plants in a talk for the Federated Garden Club of Livonia Wednesday, Jan. 8 at 8 p.m. in St. Matthew United Methodist Church, 30900 Six Mile, Livonia.

"House Plant Care and Selection — Simplified" will be the subject of the speech given by Wood, who is a trustee of the Michigan Horticulture Society, member of the advisory board of the Federated Garden clubs and lecturer and teacher at Greenfield Village.

Wood is owner of Country Gardens Nursery of Hartland, which specializes in rare and unusual trees, shrubs and plants. He is also a member of the Environmental Group, a firm involved in landscape design and horticulture consultation.

Donation for the event is $1. Nonmembers of the club who wish to attend should call Mrs. Glenn Knight, 35548 Bennett , or Mrs. Ahmad Jallad, 17526 Westbrook.

Bill Fahey claims bride

MRS. WILLIAM ROGER FAHEY
(Carla Ann Matthews)

William Roger Fahey, Redford Township resident and catcher for the Texas Rangers pro baseball team, claimed Carla Ann Matthews as his bride in a recent ceremony in the Cockrell Hill United Methodist Church in Dallas.

Fahey is the son of Mrs. Mary Bober Fahey of MacArthur Street, Redford Township, and Edwin M. Fahey of St. Petersburg, Fla. His bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Matthews of Dallas.

The Rev. Hubert Karl of Redford Township officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Attending the couple were Mrs. Terry L. Matthews of Dallas and William M. Howe of Plymouth.

After the ceremony, the newlyweds left for a Caribbean honeymoon. They will live in Dallas.

The new Mrs. Fahey is a 1972 graduate of East Texas State University where she majored in physical education and English. She was a cheerleader, senior class secretary and homecoming court member and also was selected for honoraries Cap and Gown and Delta Psi Kappa.

Her husband attended the University of Detroit and the University of Tampa and now is a student at Mt. View College. A pro baseball player for several seasons, he was named the most valuable member of the Spokane team in 1973.

Behind the store fronts

By KLAUS SCHERLER

"Our family has been well-known for 154 years in the area," says Ross B. Northrop, who cites his family's long affiliation with Northville area residents as a deciding factor for constructing a new funeral home in Northville.

A handsome new structure, the Ross B. Northrop & Sons Funeral Home is almost completed and is scheduled for official opening in January.

The funeral home, situated at Seven Mile and Northville Roads, offers a second Northrop facility, the original operative since 1910 on Grand River and still serving the Redford area.

The new building is of a Williamsburg design with provincial furnishing, which gives the structure a neat, uncluttered appearance. Two large service chapels and five visitation rooms offer callers ample room.

The facility also has a lighted parking lot able to accommodate 75 cars.

Besides the Northrop family experience in the funeral business, Ross Northrop observes that his wife, Betty, was the daughter of Nelson Schrader, who for many years operated the Schrader Funeral Home of Plymouth.

And there is more news from Northville. A 10 per cent discount is being offered senior citizens every Tuesday by the Downtown Northville Merchants in cooperation with the Northville Square Merchants Association.

To qualify, senior citizens are asked to register and receive a membership card free of charge in the Princessa Silver Jewelry kiosk on the upper level of the Northville Square Mall.

Members of the discount club will then be able to receive a 10 per cent discount at all participating stores.

Stores offering the discount will display a recognizable symbol in their windows. The discounts apply to all regular priced merchandise.

County is studying how best to use federal job funds

All departments in Wayne County have been directed by the County Board of Commissioners to submit before year's end, plans for meeting unmet needs through use of an anticipated massive increase in federal job funds.

The public works committee of the county board made the request amid reports President Ford has agreed to drop his own modest plan for public service jobs and accept a more far-reaching congressional plan sponsored by U.S. Rep. Marvin L. Esch (R-Ann Arbor), whose 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS report the White House has agreed to ask for an immediate supplemental appropriation of $1 billion to implement the House plan.

The Esch plan would authorize about $2 billion for public employment and would drop the president's proposed "trigger" system which would create public service jobs only after unemployment reached a high level for a lengthy period in a given area.

Senators are reported to be developing another public service employment bill to authorize $4 billion for public service jobs.

The House bill would be administered through the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) program which is administered by the county for most municipalities in Wayne County.

THE COMMISSIONERS' committee issued the call to county departments in lieu of approving a requested $50,000 to finance the clearing of debris from the Rouge River next summer for the third straight year.

The resolution asking $50,000 for a Rouge River clean up was introduced by Commissioner Richard E. Manning (D-Redford), whose district includes a small portion of Livonia.

For the past two summers, the county has provided funds to hire Neighborhood Youth Corps youngsters through Detroit School District.

Commissioner Paul Silver (D-Detroit) questioned the wisdom of appropriating funds for summer youth employment when a growing number of adults face unemployment. "Their fathers should be employed," he said.

The committee approved Silver's motion that the Rouge River cleanup proposal be held up until there is a clearer picture on public employment prospects for adults.

John Lesinski (D-Dearborn), chairman of the public works committee, says all county agencies have been asked to submit to his committee proposals to use the anticipated federal funds to hire staff to provide for unmet public needs.

Lesinski said a total of $12.6 million in requests by county departments for additional staff was turned down this fiscal year because of a lack of funds, adding: "There are unmet staff needs in virtually all departments, so we expect no shortage of proposals for use of the CETA funds when they become available.

Judge Lincoln cracks down on loitering

Juvenile Judge James H. Lincoln, in a letter to all police chiefs in Wayne County, is urging stricter action on loitering and disturbances in schools caused by juveniles who have no right to be there.

Judge Lincoln asked that all juveniles found loitering or causing a disturbance within a school, if they aren't enrolled in that school, be immediately taken to the Wayne County Youth Home.

Minor violations outside a school building may be handled by an ordinance violation ticket, the judge suggested, without bringing the juvenile to the youth home.

If the violation is severe or the offender is a known repeater, Judge Lincoln added, the juvenile should be brought to the youth home even though the act occurs outside the school building.

Lincoln said his purpose was "to take forceful action concerning school dropouts, juveniles suspended from school, and juveniles who are enrolled in one school but loiter in and around other schools.

"There are only rare cases when a juvenile has any business being in and around a school in which he is not enrolled when school is in session."

With help of police and school officials, Lincoln said, the Juvenile Court intends to let juveniles know strict action will be taken against those who loiter or cause trouble in schools.

School officials are being asked to post copies of the letter on school bulletin boards.

The policy was first issued in 1968 and circulated to police chiefs again on Dec. 15, 1974.

County gets tax discretion

A bill recently passed by the state legislature will allow county boards of commissioners to declare a tentative tax levy in cases where a local unit's equalized valuation is appealed before the State Tax Commission or Tax Tribunal.

Sponsor of the bill, State Rep. Raymond J. Smit (R-Ann Arbor), said the bill "will prevent an administrative nightmare that would be created if units of government were forced to collect additional taxes from property owners who had already paid their taxes as a result of a higher tax role decided by the tax commission or tribunal."

Plymouth UMC covenant service to begin 1975

A covenant service, which has its roots in the early days of Methodism, is planned for Jan. 5 in the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth, North Territorial west of Sheldon.

The Rev. Paul M. Cargo, senior minister, said the special service to begin the new year is scheduled for both the 9:30 and 11 a.m. worship hours.

The service, he said, dates from the time of John Wesley, 18th century founder of the Methodist expression of the Christian faith.

"On Dec. 25, 1747," Rev. Cargo related, "John Wesley strongly urged Methodists to renew their covenant with God. Records show that Wesley's first covenant service was held in the French Church at Spitalfields on Aug. 11, 1755."

Later modifications, he said, brought a service form "which gave the people a larger share in the devotions."

The pastor said the service as prepared by John Wesley "states in unmistakable Christian terms the spiritual agreements that a sincere follower of Christ makes at the beginning of a new year."

The covenant itself, he said, includes these words:

"Christ has many services to be done; some are easy, others are difficult; some bring honor, others bring reproach; some are suitable to our natural inclinations and temporal interests, others are contrary to both.

"In some we may please Christ and please ourselves; in others we cannot please Christ except by denying ourselves. Let us engage our heart to the Lord and resolve in his strength never to go back."

The service will end with the sharing of the elements of communion.

'Funeral helps us accept reality of death,' director says

By MARGARET MILLER

Funeral services, says a man who directs them, help people accept the reality of death, and viewing the body is an important part of this help.

Patrick Curtin, a Ferndale director, put the function of the funeral into perspective when he spoke at a recent seminar on death and dying sponsored by the Western Wayne Vicariate adult education program.

"The funeral director tries to provide a setting in which people can accept the reality of death and then go on, aware of the separation but able to continue," Curtin said.

"Two aspects of grief expression are essential—viewing the body and receiving visitors."

Curtin said that seeing the body of a loved one, though "traumatic," seems to be absolutely necessary to the psychological acceptance of death. He added that it's much better, too, if there is a graveside service so the casket can be seen being placed in the ground.

"SOMETIMES THE LAST sight of a loved one before death was a most unpleasant one," the director stated, "and seeing him more restful seems to help.

"Even in cases in which the casket must be closed, we urge strongly that some member of the family view the body before this is done."

Having visitors in the funeral home, he added, "provides the opportunity for the family to talk about what's happened, and each repetition enforces the reality."

"Repeating the circumstances also seems to ease the pain," he stated.

FROM THE AUDIENCE, a woman spoke to mention that her mother had died far away from home and, in an effort to spare her family burial expenses, had willed her body to science, stipulating in her will that there should be no funeral service.

"But I still have a hard time convincing myself that she's gone," the woman said, "even though it's been five years."

A man in the audience added that the family had a funeral for his father but no graveside service, and that too was not satisfactory.

Asked about memorial services, Curtin said that "with no body present, people tend to hedge—they are not as helpful as at a funeral."

CURTIN EXPLAINED the reason for the various services a funeral home provides and the costs involved.

"We have allowed the casket to become over-emphasized," he said, "and an effort now is being made to change this by itemizing costs."

A casket is needed to display the body for the service, he said, and Michigan law requires that in the case of cremation the body must be presented in a casket.

"Cemeteries require vaults," he added, because otherwise the grave could cave in. But there is a wide variation in the price of caskets and vaults, and people should realize this."

He also pointed out that the embalming process is in no way an attempt to imortalize, but rather to sanitize the body so that the very reason for people coming together is not unpleasant.

The funeral procession, he said, is "so valuable to the family that I would hate to see it eliminated even though it presents traffic problems.

"It recognizes that the father or mother or husband or wife has died—that a life has been lived.

In assisting a bereaved family, the director said, the important thing is work with the people involved and determine what is valuable to them and what is not.

"Our function must be to remind families that funerals are for the living," he added.

FUNERAL COSTS, the director said, vary greatly, but the average today is in the area of $1,700.

"It's hard for us to judge what is extravagant in a funeral," he stated.

"Most funerals here would be judged extravagant in Bangladesh, but then, so would the way we dress. Good funeral directors try to help the family decide what is best in each case."

An autopsy following death in a hospital in no way interferes with the funeral process, Curtin said, nor does cremation or willing organs for transplants.

A funeral also is possible, he said, when a body is willed to a medical school.

"A recent check with Wayne State University indicates there is always acceptance of bodies for use by the medical students but not a pressing need," Curtin said. He most strongly recommended against "simple disposition of the body, that is, removing it to the crematorium.

"That deprives the family of expressing grief," he said.

Diabetes class set by county

Diabetics and their families can learn about the condition of diabetes mellitus, its control and treatment and the importance of diet in classes to be sponsored by the Wayne County Department of Health.

To begin Tuesday, Jan. 7 from 7-9 p.m. in room 200 in the Wayne County Health Center on Merriman, Westland, the classes will continue five evenings.

The necessity of the diabetic's cooperation with his physician is stressed along with the patient's responsibility in caring for himself in order to lead an active, normal life.

All diabetics, regardless of age, may attend with written approval from their physician. Children under 14 should be accompanied by a parent.

To register for the class call the Wayne County Department of Health.

Addition being considered for St. Peter school

Members of St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran church will make a final decision at the end of January about erecting an addition to the church's elementary school on Penniman in Plymouth.

Architectural plans made by Thomas Strat and Associates of Troy have been completed for the proposed structure which is estimated to cost $400,000 and which will add 10,000 square feet to the school.

The plans include three new classrooms and a multi-purpose room with both kitchen and gymnasium facilities.

"It will be a consolidation of all the classrooms and will replace the portable class building at the rear of the property," said Richard Brucker, building committee chairman.

"When completed, the multi-purpose room will be large enough to hold the various functions of the church, such as church dinner and school athletics. Right now we have to borrow a gym for our students.

"We are planning to use construction materials that are not going out of sight as far as price is concerned. The structure will be of cement blocks with stained wood facing on the Penniman side.

In the multi-purpose room we will use large wooden beams rather than steel ones."

Preliminary approval for the addition has already been given by the congregation. A final decision will be made following a discussion of bids submitted by construction companies.

The structure will be placed next to the east side of the existing building.

Members of the building committe are Russell Ash, Roger Bogenschutz, John Covach, Milt Lehnhardt and Frank Roberts.

Other members are Don Wisman, Dale Manzel, Gary Schroeder, Mrs. Lillian Ash and Mrs. Nancy Roberts. Ex-officio members are the Rev. Leonard Koeninger, pastor of St. Peter, and Dave Jacobs, principal of the school.

The finance committee is headed by Al Harbeck, who is assisted by Ernest Berridge, Richard Kieweg, William Brown, Robert Beyer, Robert Bartley.

Other committee members are James McBain, Herman Weiland and James List.

Dr. Walch to preach

Dr. Henry Walch, minister emeritis of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, will return Sunday, Jan. 5 to preach at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services in the church located at 701 Church.

Dr. Walch retired in September, 1971, after 28 years as minister of the church. His topic Sunday will be "The Magi."

A New Year's approach to suburban problems

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

SUBURBIA, Jan. 2 — "How on earth," people ask, "can you write a New Year's column on life here in the suburbs, mixing wit with wisdom, punditry with profundity?"

On this second day of 1975, I can now reveal that the answer is: Persistence, regardless of point.

You start out writing sentences which don't seem to be going anywhere. Then you throw them away and start over in another direction, and before very long you have a column which

With area-wide unemployment over 10 per cent and white collar layoffs well under way, many local families are

SUBURBIA, Jan. 2 — Those who put forth the argument that the central crisis confronting these suburban communities during this new year is recession in the auto industry are plainly wrong. The overwhelming evidence is clear that inflation remains the number one problem for these suburbs, with prices going up at a rate of over 10 per cent and countless local families

There can be no doubt whatsoever that more football is exactly what is needed, especially here in the suburbs, where

Eccentricities

Gold isn't all that glitters

For the first time since the early 1930's, Americans can own gold bullion.

As attractive as this may be to some people, it couldn't have come at a worst time for the economy.

When someone purchases a hunk of the gold stuff, there is little he can do with it beside letting it lay in the basement and hope it appreciates in value.

It doesn't pay interest or dividends.

To buy gold most people will take the purchase price out of either their savings or investments in the stock market.

THE HOUSING industry over the last year and a half has been in worse shape than the auto industry.

This has been primarily because there has been no mortgage money available. The lack of mortgage funds occured because people took their money out of savings and loan associations and banks and put it into higher interest yielding commercial paper or treasury bills. Economists call this disintermediation.

The interest rates on both these forms of paper is not coming down and money is returning to the S & L's and banks, which could bring back the housing industry.

UNFORTUNATELY a lot of this money will diverted into gold ownership.

Gold ownership could be a very bad investment unless you have bad teeth or like to make jewelry.

The small buyer will pay too much for gold. The small buyer always pays too much for anything.

If he acquires it through a bank or brokerage, he will be encouraged not to take it home and bury it, but to leave it where he bought it and pay a monthly or yearly storage charge.

IF HE TAKES it home and later tries to sell it, he must have it assayed again to prove he hasn't tinkered with the content. This is another cost.

Obviously when he buys and sells it, some one will be paid a sales commission.

Since the price of gold has reached its highest level ever in anticipation of Americans flocking to the buying scene, the question of appreciation in the near term is quite speculative.

It seems like a glittering opportunity to tuck something away and feel secure, but it doesn't do much for you as compared to other investments that will probably grow faster once the economy straightens out and pay some income in the meantime.

Sense And Nonsense

A FRIEND of ours noticed a bumper sticker on the car ahead of his that said, "Honk if you love Jesus." Considering the season, our friend honked, whereupon the knave in the car ahead turned around and, as the young people say, flipped him the bird.

The facts on the 'dangers' of sports

R. T. Thompson writes

What better time to discuss the question of football injuries than today after everyone has had his eyes glued to the tube for the past three nights and all day Wednesday watching grid classics around the nation.

Strangely enough, one never sits back to think of the possibility of injuries while watching the games. Even though you see players limp off the field, others are carried to the sidelines and then you get a report that all is well with the world and the hurts aren't serious.

The only problem is that those who have feelings against the great national sport take special pains to point out the great number of injuries in a single season.

WE ARE NOT saying there aren't injuries in football at all levels pro, college, high school, junior high and little league, but we are saying that there aren't as many serious injuries as one may be led to believe.

To answer many of the critics, the National Federation of State High School Associations recently made a survey of educators, physicians, coaches and athletic administrators.

We decided to take a few minutes of your time to record some of questions asked and the answers. These are not our questions and thus definitely not our answers.

We will interject at this time that years ago as a high school sophomore, we suffered serious injuries in a football game...a scrub game in the back lots. But they did leave us with a deaf ear, had us in a hospital bed for more than three months and then took a long period of recuperation.

You might ask if we lost out love for the game. The answer is no such thing, we enjoy a good high school game today just as much as we did then and probably will as long as we're around.

ONE QUESTION often asked is whether the nation's high school principals support a football program. The answer is a resounding "Yes" that the National Association of Secondary School Principals believes interscholastic football is an essential part of secondary school programs.

What about those broad claims that football is physically dangerous. The answer is that the anxiety about the dangers of the sport is not well founded .

From the standpoint of fatalities, there are nine times fewer deaths of high school boys per hour of exposure on the football field than in automobiles.

Much has been said of the chances of a boy being injured in high school football. But the fact is, there are only 0.25 knee injuries for every 100 participants in schooboy football in the state of Wisconsin. That would make a national yearly total of 2,500 knee injuries... a far cry from those who would have you believe there are 40,000 knee operations annually.

THIS RECORD of safety can be attributed to rule changes, improved medical screening and care and better coaching. Those who have watched the improvement of area teams in recent years can attest to these.

Many ask if there has been an increase in the number of high school football injuries in recent years. The answer is "No." Statistics ta en in Wisconsin showed the injury incidence was lower in 1972 and 1973 than during any previous 13 years.

There are those who state that football is a chief cause of spinal cord and head injuries. But this isn't true. The most common cause of paraplegia, quadriplegia and brain injury is motor vehicle accidents, accounting for 30 to 45 per cent at Craig Rehabilitation Hospital in Denver, where a five year study was conducted.

CRITICS ASK what's being done to further reduce head and neck injuries.

Use of the head for spearing is prohibited. But that's hard to enforce, and rules makers are now turning their attention to better helmets. A standard has been established, and if the helmet doesn't meet the standard it is barred.

The question is oft asked, "Are the bene its of football worth the risks?"

Tim Craig, PHD, committee on the medical aspects of sports, American Medical Association, says "Although rare, no fatality or crippling injury seems justifiable in sport; but it is questionable whether the safety situation would be improved if there were no participation in organized football or other sports."

AND FINALLY the biggest question of all is whether a boy should be exposed to physical contact if it carries any risk at all.

Bill Mack, a head football coach in Illinois, replies, "Boys learn positive values from physical contact, not the least of which is self respect. In our society today, I think earning self-respect is especially imp rtant."

So when someone complains to you about youngsters playing football, basketball, hockey or any othet contact sport, just remember it could be the best lesson they'll ever learn

Personally we see nothing wrong about any of the sports. We think it is fine for youngsters to compete but not at too early an age.

Grandmother gave good advice to today's consumer

By SHELLY GUGGENHEIM

"With a mouth, you can speak to the President!"

It may have been an immigrant's vision of American democracy but my grandmother stoutly believed that if you had a legitimate complaint you should pursue it up through an organization until you receive satisfaction.

Although she related this gem to her sons long ago, this amplified version of "caveat emptor" becomes more meaningful as time and money become shorter.

Not so long ago, I wouldn't quibble about a few cents more or less. The picture has changed as pennies become more difficult to hang on to.

AFTER YEARS of being "ladylike," i.e. quiet and unobtrusive, I—and my "magic mouth"—have learned to state my case clearly, logically and firmly. No more sulking, temporized rage and hysteria—I just say my piece and if I don't get results, up the organizational ladder I go.

In doing so I have learned that the person at the top is usually more reasonable and flexible than his or her subordinates.

At our medical clinic, the manager in effect told us we were lucky to receive medical care at all when I complained about the doctors' disregard for their appointment schedules. After filing a formal complaint, the clinic administrator informed us the physicians' schedules were being arranged more realistically. The administrator had been unaware of the problem and would have remained so if the manager had had his way.

IN TRANSFERR NG my savings account from one bank to another, the account had been closed several days before the money was transferred, resulting in a loss of interest. When I complained to the teller, her response was, "That's the way it's done." Her boss, however, recognized a legitimate complaint and rectified the situation.

Grocery scales, the kind that weigh and price, are often wrong, and managers are usually willing to correct the error. If not, a call to the State Department of Agriculture, division of weights and measures, usually will do the trick.

Perhaps if the voice of the people had been heard earlier some of the economic mess we're in could have been avoided.

Certainly, if my grandmother were alive, she'd have spoken to the President.

Rationing better than gas tax

READERS FORUM

Editor:

Congratulations on Emory Daniels' recent editorial pertaining to the much talked-about increase in the gasoline tax. I do hope that many people in this area will wake up and write to their congressman and express their attitude relative to this unjust thinking as I intend to do.

I am in full agreement with his comments as to a more logical approach to the problem — if we really have one — by putting a rationing program into effect; expensive to administer but by far an approach that will be fairer to all motorists.

The difficult thing to understand is the present attitude of many oil companies, putting demands on their whipped station operators to sell more gasoline! That is the story I get in my travels.

The comments expressed recently by those in favor of such a ridiculous proposal — Henry Ford, Murphy from General Motors, Sen. Percy of Illinois and others — only serve to indicate that they are grasping for straws, attempting to solve the real problem and to further chastise the middle class (backbone) of this nation.

At this point, I do believe that anyone has the answer on the best solutions for energy improvement, but this crazy thinking related to gasoline tax burden certainly is not the answer, and my thanks to you for pointing out to the many readers in this area the importance for each of us to strike back — with the pen or typewriter, fast, and alert our congressmen that the privilege to enjoy an automobile and, in my case, to travel and make a living should not be literally curtailed.

Redford roads in sorry state

Editor:

Every year our Wayne County taxes go up without explanation. This is fine!

But I would like, as a Redford Township taxpayer for 25 years, to invite anyone to come out and travel our residential roads. They are the most holey and embarrassing roads you can find anywhere.

I didn't even invite my relatives and best friends over for the holidays this year because I didn't want them to ruin their cars and say something about our roads — they are always giving us the business about our bad roads (and they are right!).

Please, Redford Township taxpayers do some questioning, or your sons and daughters and grandsons will have the same problem for another 20 years.

SALES TAX

ON JANUARY 1, 1975, the amended sales tax act will be in effect. Nontaxable items will include prescription drugs for human use or food for human consumption.

WHAT IS? AND WHAT ISN'T? Basically, if you can eat it, it is nontaxable. The majority of food items intended to be eaten outside of the store for human consumption are not taxable.

PREPARED FOODS intended for immediate consumption will still be taxable. This means that items purchased such as snack bar items or ice cream cones or coffee and donuts will be taxed. However, for example, the purchase of a dozen donuts to take home will be nontaxable.

TAXABLE ITEMS will include alcoholic beverages, tobacco products, pet foods, nonprescription drugs, ice, distilled water, cocktail mixes and seeds. Paper products, soaps, household supplies and all other nonedible items will be taxed.

SEPARATE ORDERS We could ring all taxable items first, tax the total, and then ring in all non-taxable items. Not at Meijer. After changes are made on our cash registers, it will NOT be necessary to separate your food from your non-food. The registers will be able to separate the taxable items into a taxable total.

REGISTER CHANGES are already being made for us. We hope to complete the change by January 1. However, if all registers are not converted by January 1, we ask for your patience in separating orders temporarily.

BY THESE REGISTER CHANGES, we hope to start 1975 off right.

AT MEIJER, we want to serve you better.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

FROM ALL OF US!

WE'LL HELP YOU RETURN NON-RETURNABLE BOTTLES

Non-returnable bottles have a bad reputation. They're too often found where they shouldn't be and can't account for their presence. You'll find large glass recycling bins in the parking lot of most Meijer Thrifty Acres stores. They are provided as part of our effort to return those non-returnable bottles back to the glass factories.

You can help, too! Please sort the bottles by color into the part of the bin so designated.

We'll see that they are returned to the foundry.

Churchill falls in overtime

It's Bentley-Franklin in hockey finale

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

Mike Dudley and Paul Ferguson will have to dig deep into their respective "bag of tricks" to come up with an act that will complement their showings in the George Gee hockey semifinals.

It was Dudley's Bentley Bulldog crew and Ferguson's Franklin Patriot squad that won in overtime to earn the right to face one another in the Observer & Eccentric sponsored George Gee Tourney finale tomorrow (Friday) at Livonia's Ford Rink. Faceoff is 8 p.m.

Bentley dumped Stevenson High in one overtime stanza, 7-6, and Franklin upended previously unbeaten Churchill in four overtimes, 4-3.

"I THINK Churchill thought it already had that George Gee trophy," commented Ferguson, whose Franklin team had lost to Churchill earlier in the season, 7-3.

"We made 46 mistakes to Churchill's 19 in that loss, so I don't really consider this win an upset. I just hope we don't blow this tourney championship away like we did last year to Stevenson."

This will be the first season that Stevenson High will not carry home the Gee Cup. The Spartans dumped Churchill for the crown two years agao and Franklin, 5-3, last year.

And in the other overtime thriller, Dudley commented, "Stevenson blew us right off the rink in that first period.

"But the kids really bounced back from that 4-1 deficit. We are really excited about playing in the finale with Franklin.."

THE OPENING minute in the Bentley-Stevenson match saw Spartan Dave Reckling fan on two point-blank shots at Tim Oakley in the Bulldog net.

Then with Tom McLean and Glen Stevens both coming out of the penalty box for Bentley, Jeff McDonald slapped in goal No. 1 for Stevenson at the four minute mark.

Eight seconds later, Doug Smith dribbled a shot right between Oakley's legs, and it was up to 2-0.

Chris Givas made it 2-1 at the 7:01 mark into the first, but Jerry DiRusso and Gary Zilch opened the Spartans' gap to 4-1.

The Bulldogs, who had never beaten Stevenson in hockey since the formation of the Prep Hockey loop, turned the tables on Stevenson in the second period.

Tom McLean hit for two goals, Mark Sabuda one and it was five-all, one period remaining.

Doug Smith for Stevenson and Dave Manoogian for Bentley tied it up at six-all after regulation time.

At the 1:07 mark into the first overtime, Manoogian pumped in his third tally, Curt Downs hung his head for Stevenson, and Dudley's crew was into the playoffs.

Eighteen penatlies were called in the 45-minute clash, and all but the game's first and final scores were during power plays.

IT WAS THEN the powerful Churchill Chargers against a spirited Franklin squad, and the Patriots nearly skated circles around a lackluster Churchill team the entire squad.

The solo score in the first period came on a tally by Nelson Yanic at 13:48.

Churchill jumped back to take a 2-1 lead after two periods on scores by Jeff Truax and Kardos. Franklin never gave up and tied it at 2-all early in the third when Gerry Kmet bested Charger goalie Phil Rose.

At the 7:21 mark into the period, Todd Bond, who had received a double misconduct earlier, gave the Chargers a 3-2 lead. And with just 2:11 remaining, John Vella struck for one, Stu Said assisting.

It was into overtime periods of five minutes each, and the Patriots found their charm piece in No. 4 when Vella slapped in the decider, Kmet assisting, and Churchill's Bond was once again in the penalty box.

Now it is Bentley against Franklin for the championship Friday. Dudley and Ferguson are really going to have "dig" to top the shows they put in the semis.

John Glenn cagers crush Cherry Hill for title, 68-41

The Rockets of Westland John Glenn ended an eight-year drought in holiday basketball play.

Gordie Davis' Glenn cagers showed what they are made of in this 1974-75 campaign by knocking off two of the finer cage squads in the area to take top honors in the Wayne Holiday Tourney.

The past eight years have seen every other club but Glenn win the holiday battle. And this year's four-school bout between Belleville, Cherry Hill, Glenn and host Wayne showed the combined schools with an overall 20-2 mark.

GLENN NIPPED Belleville in its opener, 77-75, while Cherry Hill tipped Wayne at the buzzer. The Rockets then poured it on in the finale over Cherry Hill, 68-41, while Belleville topped Wayne in a consolation match, 78-70. Charity tosses from the free-throw line were the key for Glenn. The Rockets popped in 17 of 19 against Belleville and then sparkled against Cherry Hill with a 32 for 38 card.

The now 8-1 Rockets, the solo loss coming to Cherry Hill earlier, 66-62, have Taylor Truman on tap Friday (Jan.7).

Then it's right into Northwest Suburban play, home against Garden City East on Jan. 10.

"We are coming," said Coach Davis. "I couldn't be happier with this tourney title over three of the better clubs in the area.

"It was a good overall team effort.

"Consistency is going to be our key the rest of the way now."

The tourney opener over the Tigers of Belleville saw Glenn take off to a 22-14 first quarter advantage. An 18-point output in the second upped it to 40-28 at the half.

Belleville moved into a press the third quarter, and the Rockets started turning over the ball. Glenn was outscored in the stanza, 25-14, and the difference sliced to 54-53, eight minutes remaining.

Mel Abraham, Belleville's leading scorer collected, 12 of his 24 points in that quarter.

It was nip-and-tuck in the fourth. With 14 seconds remaining, Glenn had itself a 75-73 lead. Belleville then missed on two shots and Terry Johnson hauled in a rebound for Glenn and was fouled.

When Johnson made good both ends of a one and one, Glenn had itself a win. Johnson was high scorer with 26 points.

Glenn wound up 30 of 57 from the floor for a 54 shooting per cent mark and hauled in 45 rebounds.

DEFENSE WAS the key in the championship bout.

After leading 12-8 at the end of one quarter, it was sliced to 21-20 at the half over the previously unbeaten Cherry Hill club.

Glenn opened the third quarter with three straight buckets, and Cherry Hill moved out off its zone and into a man-to-man setup. The Rockets took the quarter, 20-10, and kept up that pace in 27-11 style in the fourth.

Of the 27 Rocket points in the fourth, 19 came at the freethrow line where Glenn made good 19 of 22 tosses.

Floor percentage showed Glenn 18 of 46 for 39 per cent and 32 of 38 at the charity line.

"This was our best defensive effort yet," commented Davis. "We were aggressive and kept their big man in Fowler off the boards."

Box scores:

Despite the slump in the economy and the moans from the purveyors of doom and gloom, the bowling establishments were hives of activity during the holiday season.

From all sections came reports that the "open" bowlers came in larger numbers than had been expected. In some cases they established records for the number of games bowled.

"They started to come about noon on Christmas Day," Ann Setlock, one of the Garden Lanes managers, reported, and they kept streaming in most of the afternoon and evening.

"Mostly, they were families," she continued, "and a good many of them were trying out new equipment given them for Christmas. They sure had a good time."

This story was repeated in most other bowling centers, and now, the Christmas season is one of the busiest times of the year.

ONE OF THE STATE'S largest tournaments gets underway Saturday at Thunderbowl in Allen Park, when the men's state association opens competition to declare state champions.

The entry has reached 2,580 teams, and they will represent all sections of the state in the annual event that will last the better part of three months.

EDDIE MARSZKA celebrated the holidays in a big way as he stole the show in the Classic at Westland Bowl.

He opened with a 245, followed with a 268 and closed with a game of 236 for a 748 series. It is one of the highest of the season in the Classic.

Meanwhile Steve Hubble, bowling in the men's morning league, went away over his 170 average with a 269 game to pace his group.

CAROLYN NIEDERKOWN is setting a fine example for all senior citizens these days at Livonia Lanes.

Not many realized it, but she celebrated her 70th birthday there on Monday by doing what she loves best—bowl.

She bowls in two leagues each week, works three days, and carries an average of 145.

Aside from all this activity, she still finds time to do a bit of square dancing.

JOHN WATKINS and Alex Morawa shared high scoring honors during the week at Merri-Bowl.

John set the pace in the Senior House League with a 691 series, and Alex was top man in the American Legion with 690 that included a 290 middle game.

THE JUNIORS did some good scoring in the annual holiday doubles at Country Lanes.

Glenn Stewart teamed with Steve Abrams for 1149 to lead the prep division while Jeff Hancock and Don Baumgartner teamed it for 1332 in the Junior division. In the major section, leaders were Bill Lewis and Tom Olszewski who posted a 1193 count.

SCORING ALSO soared at Plymouth Bowl where Tom Shanahan, a 157 average bowler, linked games of 235, 200 and 216 for 651. But the strangest of all series was fashioned by Bob Truskowski, of the Chevy League. He opened with a 288, then dropped to 155 and 157 in his closing games for a 610.

Now we are into the new year, and despite a legal fight hanging over its head, harness racing started 1975 as scheduled at Northville Downs Thursday, and to all appearances will continue.

Executive Director John Carlo's suit against Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley, to regain summer racing dates instead of the 83 winter nights alloted to Northville Downs last October, will come up for hearing Friday morning before Appeals Court Judge Thomas Foley.

Originally the matter was to have been disposed of last Friday. But after a few opening remarks by attorneys, the case was delayed for a week for further hearing.

Judge Foley, a resident of Plymouth and thus one who knows a bit about harness racing, has indicated he will study the briefs during the interim period and probably make a decision after hearing additional arguments from the two sides.

It will be interesting to see what happens since all of the tracks have started plans for 1975 with Wolverine and Hazel Park already scheduled for Grand Circuit meetings which cannot be changed. If the Michigan dates are changed, then there is a possibility that both tracks will lose their Roaring Grand dates.

It has been our thought from the beginning that the commissioner has full authority to make and allot dates as he sees fit and they can't be changed.

IN CASE ANYONE doesn't know what the big argument is all about, the commissioner awarded back-to-back summer dates to Hazel Park and Wolverine, taking the lucrative hot weather programs from Northville which pioneered night harness racing back in 1944. It has been blessed with summer meetings ever since, even though Commissioner Shirley had gradually sliced the number from 48 to 36 to 24 and now to none.

Shirley uses the much higher nightly average handles at the two major tracks, the benefits to the state and the fact that Northville Downs has the only plant completely equipped for hot and cold weather meetings. The plant is completely glass enclosed with air conditioning and heating units, all installed at tremendous expense.

Carlo, in turn, makes it clear the expansions were made after an understanding with the commissioner that his track still receive summer dates. That's where the rub comes. Shirley denies any such promises, and as far as we know there aren't any such communications in writing.

The fact remains that Shirley, in his role of czar of racing, did deny Northville Downs any summer dates. Now it will be up to the court to make a decision. If it goes against the commissioner we'll be very much surprised.

IN THE MEANTIME, Carlo went ahead with plans for 1975 after receiving an opinion from his lawyer that it wouldn't jeopardize the court decision.

Racing Secretary Harry Peterson checked in from Florida last week and made the draw for Wednesday's opening program on Saturday. The remainder of the staff will be much the same as that which ended Northville's abbreviated 24 night summer meeting last June.

You can bet that if Carlo loses this round, he'll still be in there fighting and doing everything possible to have the Legislature assure his track of summer dates in another year.

The difference may be that there's a possibility he'll be dealing with a new commissioner unless our information from Lansing is entirely wrong. We have it from top sources that Gov. William Milliken is being pressured to make a change and is ready to do so. The next two weeks will answer to that.

A TIP OF THE topper to big Bob Kalish, the Southfield wheeler and dealer who has put together a powerful stable in the past two years and reached a high point last Saturday when his Spanish Mac won the $13,800 championship finale of the $85,000 early winter pacing series at Jackson-Northville.

Kalish, one of the very few Michigan owners with a top stable to remain in Michigan during the winter, has been saying all along that one of his horses would be right there for the championship.

Blood donor drive started by Dems

A blood donor drive is being planned to establish a bloodbank in the name of the Wayne 2nd District Democratic organization.

A minimum of 50 donors is required to establish the bloodbank for the group. Once the bloodbank is established, all members (including those unable to donate blood) will receive coverage for all blood requirements for their wives or husbands, children, parents and grandparents.

IF THE PROJECT is successful, active participation will be required of all district members, says Marvin R. Stempien of Livonia, Wayne-2nd Dem chairman.

"Because many persons are unable to give blood, upwards of 200 volunteers may have to be screened to find 50 donors," explains Stempien. "The Red Cross has supplied a list which pinpoints those conditions which make a person unable to give blood."

A person cannot donate blood if: weight isn't at least 110; he has donated blood within the last eight weeks; has any history of jaundice or hepatitis, or has had close contact with anyone with these diseases in the past six months.

Persons are also unable to donate if they: are in the last six weeks of pregnancy; had teeth extractions or oral surgery within the past three days; had any history of malignancy excluding minor skin cancer; had a smallpox vaccination within the past two weeks; are a diabetic on medication; had a penicillin injection within the last 30 days, or antibiotics of any kind within the past two weeks; have had anti-malarial drugs within the past three years; or have had major surgery in the past six months.

Besides the above, donors must be between the ages of 18-66. A 17-year-old can donate with written parental permission. Donations from persons older then 66 ar accepted with doctor's permission.

BLOOD DONORS needn't be members of the 2nd District organization to join the bloodbank, Stempien says.

"We want this project to benefit both our organization and the community."

The Wayne-2nd Dems will donate Wednesday, Feb. 5, from 3-9 p.m. in Faith Lutheran Church, 30000 Five Mile. Donors should contact the bloodbank chairman for the organization, Alan Helmkamp of 33900 Schoolcraft, Livonia.

Blood is in constant demand by the 80 area hospitals, Stempien says. Because whole blood lasts only 21 days, and cannot be artifically manufactured, volunteers are the only source for blood.

WSU features topical threats

Killer sickle-cell anemia, the problems of the aging, and man's use and abuse of the environment are among topical threats which highlight a special science course offered this winter by the university studies and weekend college program of Wayne State University.

Science and Ecology, which begins Jan. 6, will be taught through a combination of weekly workshops, quarterly weekend conferences, and daily television shows. Classroom sessions are not used. Persons may register with the College of Lifelong Learning in Detroit.

Science and Ecology will focus on the needs of the human body, evolution, and man's impact on his environment. Genetic structure, heredity, and energy sources will also be examined to explain ecology in traditional and contemporary terms.

A grant from the National Science Foundation will contribute to the development of the science course offering for the spring quarter beginning in April.

NAP AYOTTE recently retired from Western Electric's Michigan Service Center, headquartered in Plymouth, with 46 years service. He was presented with a special award for perfect attendance during those 46 years. He had worked on switchboard repair, subset tester and inspector, paint shop, and inspector-tester of single-frequency units. Ayotte's attitude with Western has been "Look at your occupation as a pleasure, not a job."

Company goes to Livonia

Carrier Distributing Co. has moved into a new 39,400 square foot building at 33601 Schoolcraft. The firm, a wholesale distributorship of Carrier heating and cooling products, was formerly in Royal Oak.

Ronald E. Sink, general manager, said the move gives the company better loading facilities and greatly increased floor space on two floors for offices, a showroom, warehouse and meeting room.

2nd Dems convention is Jan. 11

The Wayne 2nd District Democrats will hold its open convention Saturday, Jan. 11, beginning at 1 p.m. in the Science Lecture Hall, Madonna College at Schoolcraft and Levan in Livonia.

The first order of business will be election of a temporary chairman. After that is done, the convention will select delegates to the state convention.

Those Democrats with voting power in the convention are those elected at the primary election Aug. 6, 1974. These same delegates will attend the county convention of the Democratic Party to be held after the Wayne 2nd convention. The Democratic State Convention will be Jan. 25-26 in Cobo Hall, Detroit, when the state party chairman and State Central Committee will be selected.

Chapin to tell about new car

Roy D. Chapin Jr., board chairman of American Motors Corp., will tell the story behind Detroit's newest small car at the January meeting of the Detroit section of the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE).

Chapin will discuss AMC's Pacer, the new automotive development, and outline its positioning in the 1975 car market.

The meeting is Monday, Jan. 13, in the Raleigh House, on Telegraph north of 10 Mile in Southfield. Following the social hour at 5:45 p.m., dinner will be served at 6:30 with the meeting beginning at 8 p.m. Tickets are $7.50 and are available through SAE company representatives or by contacting the section office at 100 Farnsworth, Detroit.

An added feature of this meeting will be the annual membership night, with the usual non-member fee being waived.

Chapin's remarks will center on the future direction of U.S. car design and the fundamental reasons behind the increasing interest in smaller cars.

He will also discuss what is being done to design new cars to meet the need for energy conservation and the impact of dwindling world supplies of raw materials.

TO THE GAS CUSTOMERS OF CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY:

NOTICE OF GAS RATE HEARING AND NOTICE OF HEARING ON MOTION FOR PARTIAL AND IMMEDIATE RATE RELIEF

On November 27, 1974, Consumers Power Company filed an application with supporting testimony and exhibits with the Michigan Public Service Commission in Case No. U-4717, which requests authority to amend its gas rates so as to increase its annual gas revenues by not less than $54,157,000. At the same time, Consumers Power Company filed a Motion for Partial and Immediate Rate Relief which seeks authority, on an interim basis pending final Commission action, to amend its gas rates so as to increase its annual gas revenues by approximately $39,559,000. In its application, Consumers Power Company has stated that significant increases in the cost of capital, taxes, wages, equipment, materials and supplies have had a serious impact upon the earnings level of its gas business and that it has not been able to attain the level of earnings in its gas business found to be reasonable in the prior gas rate order of the Michigan Public Service Commission.

The Michigan Public Service Commission has scheduled hearings on the application and Motion for Partial and Immediate Rate Relief in Case No. U-4717 and has ordered that notice be given that:

A. The initial hearing in this case shall be held at 9:30 a.m. on January 20, 1975, in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913, which hearing shall be in the nature of a prehearing conference and shall be held for the purposes of exploring and, if possible, agreeing upon matters which will expedite this proceeding, including, but not limited to, the following:

1. Determining the parties to the proceeding, the nature of their appearances and the positions they are taking in the proceeding, as well as the facts they intend to controvert or give evidence of, all in accordance with the provisions of Rule 11 of the Rules of Practice and Procedure Before the Commission.
2. Simplifying and defining the issues in this proceeding,
3. Obtaining admissions as to, and stipulations of, facts not remaining in dispute, the authenticity of documents, and matters of public record.
4. Determining the number and identity of witnesses.
5. Specifying the schedule for the exchange of proposed exhibits and written testimony, and the reduction of oral testimony to written form.
6. Establishing procedures for the hearing.
7. Specifying a further schedule of dates of hearing.
8. Expediting any other matters that may aid in the orderly conduct of the hearing and the disposition of the proceeding.

B. A public hearing shall be held at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on January 28, 1975, in the Auditorium of the Law Building, 525 West Ottawa Street, Lansing, Michigan 48913, for the special purpose of taking statements and testimony of any interested persons.

C. Further public hearings in this matter shall begin at 9:30 a.m. on February 10, 1975, in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913, for the purpose of commencing cross-examination of the Company's witnesses and such further proceedings as may be necessary or appropriate. Public hearings shall continue thereafter from day to day or on such adjourned dates as the presiding officer may set until the matter has been fully heard.

D. A public hearing will be held on the Company's Motion for Partial and Immediate Rate Relief at an appropriate time during this rate proceeding following the conclusion of the cross-examination of the direct case of the Company and the receipt of the report of the Staff of the Commission in accordance with Section 6a of 1939 PA 3, as amended, MCLA 460.6a.

E. The Commission, on its own motion, will commence an investigation and hearing on January 20, 1975 into the existing gas rates, charges, revenue deficiencies or excesses, services, practices, procedures and operations of Consumers Power Company, and this investigation and hearing will not necessarily be confined to matters contained in the Company's application but will include all matters pertaining to the reasonableness and justness of the Company's gas rates, charges, operations and practices as may be necessary to enable the Commission to determine whether the existing or proposed rates and charges are unreasonable and excessive and should be reduced or altered.

F. Any person seeking to intervene, in accordance with Rule 11 of the Rules of Practice and Procedure Before the Commission, shall file with the Commission, at least five (5) days prior to the initial hearing of January 20, 1975, an original and 12 copies of a petition to intervene, together with proof of service upon Consumers Power Company.

Subparagraph (2) of Rule 11 of the Rules of Practice and Procedure Before the Commission (R 460.21) provides as follows:

> "(2) A petition to intervene shall set out clearly and concisely the facts supporting the petitioner's alleged right or interest, the grounds of the proposed intervention, and the position of the petitioner in the proceeding, so as fully and completely to advise the parties and the commission of the specific issues of fact or law to be raised or controverted." (Emphasis added)

The Commission will require strict compliance with the above-quoted rule.

G. Consumers Power Company, on or before January 20, 1975, shall serve upon each intervening party a copy of the written direct testimony of its proposed witnesses and its proposed exhibits as filed with the Commission. Proof of service shall be filed with the Commission on or before February 10, 1975.

H. THE INCREASES DESCRIBED IN THIS NOTICE HAVE BEEN REQUESTED BY CONSUMERS POWER COMPANY. THE MICHIGAN PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION MAY EITHER GRANT OR DENY THE REQUESTED INCREASE, IN WHOLE OR IN PART, AND MAY GRANT A LESSER OR GREATER INCREASE THAN THAT REQUESTED AND MAY AUTHORIZE A LESSER OR GREATER RATE FOR ANY CLASS OR CLASSES OF SERVICE.

Jurisdiction in this matter is pursuant to 1909 PA 300, as amended, MCLA 462.2 et seq; Section 4 of 1919 PA 419, as amended, MCLA 460.54; Sections 4, 6, 6a and 6b of 1939 PA 3, as amended, MCLA 460.4, 460.6, 460.6a and 460.6b; Section 3 of 1923 PA 238, as amended, MCLA 486.253; Chapter 4 of 1969 PA 306, as amended, MCLA 24.271 et seq; and the Rules of Practice and Procedure Before the Commission, 1954 Administrative Code, Supplement No. 54, R 460.11 et seq.

More assumption sales

House prices stable but financing shifts

Residential house prices remained relatively stable in Wayne and Oakland counties for most of 1974, although there has been a marked shift in the means of financing house purchases.

The most recent development in the single family sales field is a shift from conventional financing to assumption sales. Under an assumption sale, the buyer assumes the mortgage for a negotiated cash down payment. The buyer has the advantage of keeping the interest rate on the seller's mortgage plus any equity the seller has built up.

With interest rates high and mortgage money less available, the homeowner on the market often cannot find a buyer with purchasing power unless an existing mortgage is assumed at earlier interest rates.

This shift appears in statistical reports in April 1974 and November 1974 compiled by the United Northwest Realtors Association (UNRA).

THE APRIL report, covering the first four months of 1974, indicated an average residential sale price of $26,605 in 1973 and $29,435 in 1974.

With November 1974 figures in, comparsions of 11-month periods showed an average residential price of $27,260 in 1973 and $29,430 in 1974. The sales price difference between the first four months of 1974 and 11 months this year was slight.

Although the longer period shows an increase in house sale prices between the two years, there was actually a drop in average sale price in the individual months of November and April — months when bargains were available for the smart house shopper.

The average house sale price for November 1973 was $30,075 and dropped to $27,800 in November 1974.

Simarily, the April 1973 average sale price of $29,375 declined to $27,400 in 1974.

A look at the houses which moved on the market indicate there was generally more movement in used house sales with used houses selling for slightly less in 1974 than the year before.

Last April, for instance, most of the houses sold were priced between $20,000 and $25,000. In November, the majority of houses sold were priced below $20,000.

One explanation is that assumption financing tends to force the sales price down so that less cash is needed by the buyer to take over the seller's mortgage. Because of this market phenomenon, when money is tight and assumptions in demand, cheaper houses sell easier.

In April some 1,475 residential units were sold compared to 623 in November. This represents a seasonal decline, in part, because typically more homes are sold in the spring and summer then in winter months. It may also reflect layoffs of automobile workers in the area.

MORE INTERESTING, however, is the shift from conventional financing to assumptions from April to November as interest rates rose and money became tighter.

In April 1974, about 48 per cent of all houses sold were financed with conventional loans. About 19 per cent were assumption sales, 14 per cent FHA, almost nine per cent VA.

In November 1974, however, 29 per cent of all sales were by assumption and only 20 per cent were financed with conventional loans. Another 18 per cent were FHA and almost eight per cent VA.

Cash sales almost doubled from April to November this year and land contracts increased from six per cent to 18 per cent of total residential sales.

The assumption and land contract sales, particularly, indicate how the tight money market has affected real estate sales in this region.

Under a land contract sale, the seller holds onto the existing mortgage until the new buyer pays it off. The buyer makes payments directly to the seller, who conveys the payment to the mortgage holder. In a high interest market, the land contract payment is lower than if the house sale was financed by conventional, FHA or VA means.

MOST OF THE VA and FHA sales were in Redford Township and an area including Garden City, Westland, Wayne and Inkster.

For the first 11 months of 1974, Redford recorded 42 VA and 15 FHA sales. For the zone including Garden City and Westland, there were 188 VA and 125 FHA sales.

This compares to Livonia with nine FHA and 25 VA sales, the Farmington area with five FHA and three VA, Southfield with one FHA and eight VA, and Plymouth-Canton with four FHA and three VA.

On the other hand, conventional loans totalled 250 for the first 11 months this year in Plymouth-Canton, 247 in Southfield, 354 in the Farmington area, 665 in Livonia, 605 in the Garden City-Westland zone and 367 in Redford.

The average house sales prices for these areas for the 11 months were: Redford, $27,775; Garden City-Westland, $24,758; Livonia, $36,230; Farmington area, $47,635; Southfield, $42,470; and Plymouth-Canton, $38,745.

DURING NOVEMBER in the two counties, 182 houses were sold for less than $20,000 with a total volume at almost $3 million.

Between $20-$25,000 price range, 137 houses were sold totalling $3 million; from $25-$30,000, 84 houses sold for $2.3 million; from $30,-$40,000, 93 houses sold totalling $3.2 million; from $40-$50,000, 52 housees sold for $2.3 million; and 75 houses were sold for more than $50,000 totalling almost $5 million.

Most land contract deals were for houses sold for $40,000 and more. Buyers obtaining conventional loans purchased houses for $25,000 and above. The vast majority of VA and FHA buyers purchased houses with price tags less than $25,000.

Assumption terms were popular for buyers and sellers in all price ranges except for those houses sold for less than $20,000. Most assumption deals were made on homes between $25-$50,000.

Plant of the week

Ficus elastica, commonly called the Indian rubber plant, is a durable house plant, say Michigan State University horticulturists. Young plants are erect with brown woody stems and thick, leathery oblong leaves.

The leaves are a glossy deep green. Young leaves are enclosed in a rosy sheath yielding latex-bearing milky sap. Ficus elastica will grow into a large tree, up to 100 feet high.

The houseplant will grow in filtered or diffused light. To determine diffused light, pass your hand over the plants. If you can barely see a shadow, that is diffused light. A place near an east window is best. A southern exposure must be lightly shaded from the direct sun.

Temperature should be warm, 62 to 65 degrees F at night rising to 80 to 85 degrees during the day. The plant will tolerate the dry air found in heated homes.

Soil should consist of loamy garden soil mixed with equal parts of perlite or vermiculite and peat or humus. Keep the soil evenly moist but not constantly wet. Be very careful not to overwater this plant.

Ficus elastica is a native of Burma, Africa, East Indies, Ceylon, India, Autralia, China and Japan.

Propagation is by seeds, air-layering, stem tip cuttings, and leaf bud cuttings.

Local architecture ... the good, the bad and the ugly

By DARLENE STINSON

There are winners and losers when you hold local architecture up to a critical light, but winners are lamentably few, according to two area architects.

Good architecture, both say, is design that is aesthetically pleasing and conforms to the needs of persons using the facility.

Area homes, in particular, do not measure up to those criteria, say William Lindhout, of Lindhout Associates, Livonia architects, and Richard J. Reinholt, architectural technology instructor at Schoolcraft College.

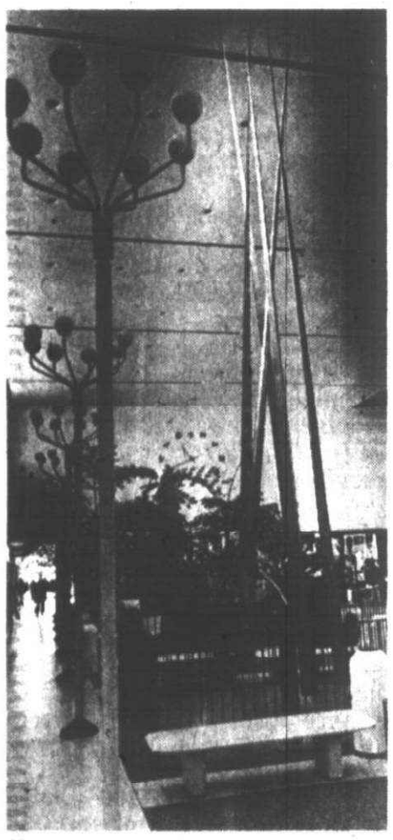
Some office buildings and churches, however, stand up to the test.

MUCH RESIDENTIAL architecture is a translation of what the production builder thinks we should have," says Lindhout. "The architect and the builder never meet. The builder designs the home, and he's telling you you can use the cheapest materials available. What you end up with in Livonia is a big, cheap house,"

The buyer of a custom-built home, designed by an architect, spends more money on his purchase, say Lindhout and Reinholt, but he receives a home that fits his individual needs and those of his family. The buyer and architect discuss every nook, cranny, cupboard and drawer that appear on the blueprint.

Many new homes are built with three or four bedrooms and a family room, notes Reinholt.

"I don't say that doesn't necessarily fit the needs of people living in them," Reinholt says. "But when you go into these mass production homes, everyone is living by the standards of someone else."



SCULPTURE and attractive lighting fixtures make Westland Center a pleasant place to shop. (Photo by Bob Woodring)

LINDHOUT, whose firm designs three or four homes a year, says buildings should be designed in relation to the sun and landscape. Large window areas should not be placed on the west side of a building because afternoon shafts of sunlight streaming through large windows can make a building's interior too warm, particularly during summer months. A large overhand or trees should protect windows placed on the west side of a building because of an attractive view.

"Mass production" homes ighore these architectural guidelines," Lindhout says.

"Model A, B, C or D of a production home can go on any lot. A lot of production homes aren't designed in relation to the sun. They don't necessarily invite nature in, except maybe through a door wall."

"IN THE situation we've worked ourselves into, custom-built homes are much more experisive. The production line seems to save a great deal of money. I can't find a handful of builders now willing to build custom homes."

Lindhout says architecturally designed homes today are priced well over the $40,000 mark. That wasn't the case 20 years ago, when Lindhout designed moderate-priced homes for retirees and teachers.

Lindhout pays one compliment to Livonia's Coventry Gardens subdivision near Five Mile and Farmington roads.

"Coventry Gardens is pleasant with a beautiful growth of trees and shrubbery. I'm sure the future holds hopes (for other residential areas). The landscaping can become so lush that it hides some shortcomings."

REINHOLT has some good words for older homes in the City of Plymouth.

"I guess I like the character Plymouth creates. I happen to like older homes, but that's because the homes were built and designed by people to fit their needs."

Reinholt called Livonia, Westland, Garden City and Redford Township offshoots of Detroit.

"Unfortunately they weren't planned far enough in advance. Those places sprang up relatively quickly. I don't think the total planning was developed as well as it should."

Many local apartment complexes are the slums of the future, Reinholt says.

"These things are built for an investment. The standard of quality depends on the length of the investment."

Lindhout added, "Some of the partment complexes remind you of army barracks, they're so terribly regimented. There seems to be a reluctance on the part of developers to use any imagination.

EVEN PARKING lots and street lamps can appear attractive, Lindhout says, but they often are not.

"At Schoolcraft College, there are acres and acres of ashphalt without a tree," he says. "The lights are the same dumb fixtures that Detroit Edison installs. They're cheap, efficient and ugly-looking. They could have been pieces of sculpture almost."

Lindhout adds, however, that some aspects of local architecture are improving.

"Even the shopping centers are trying to inject fountains to make the shopping experience a little better. There's some very fine sculpture at Westland Center. That's a definite attempt to inject art into architecture and put it in the path of customers. Let the kids climb all over it. It shouldn't be so delicate. It (Westland Center) certainly is an example, within this area, of how merchants are making efforts to create a pleasant place to shop."

THE CRITERION for a good office building, Lindhout says, is "the environment you create for people who spend eight hours a day there." Lighting, materials and electrical outlets are important.

"We find this is a very pleasant place to work," Lindhout said recently as he gazed at the wooded scene outside his office at 18518 Farmington Road. "Everybody's got something pleasant to look at out these windows."

The 12-sided building, which Lindhout's firm designed and shares with a group of attorneys, is designed in relationship to the environment and sun. Windows line the drafting room and Lindhout's office on the north side of the building and facing a small wooded area. Slits of windows in the attorneys' offices face a parking lot and Farmington Road on the south and west. Offices surround a 28-foot circle in the center of the building, where secretaries work.

ONE OF the most damaging features of an office or commercial building, Lindhout says, are flashy or neon signs.

"Signs shouldn't fight with the buildings they're on," he maintains. "They should serve to identify the building but without pretentiousness. You can always tell from an aerial photo whether a city is European or American because of the signs. When we do a building, we try to make the sign part of the building."

Lindhout, who is reluctant to talk about other architects' work, has designed numerous churches in the Livonia area, including Ward United Presbyterian Church, 17000 Farmington Road, and Unity of Livonia, 28660 Five Mile.

"I don't like to see a church overwhelm an individual," Lindhout says. "Today's individual is totally different from the illiterate person who worshipped at Notre Dame. You give him something so he can relate to the scale of the building. Theoretically, of course, you could worship in a corn field. But, if you try to concentrate on your worship, you try to set a scene that is conducive to worship. People want warmth and coziness in a church."

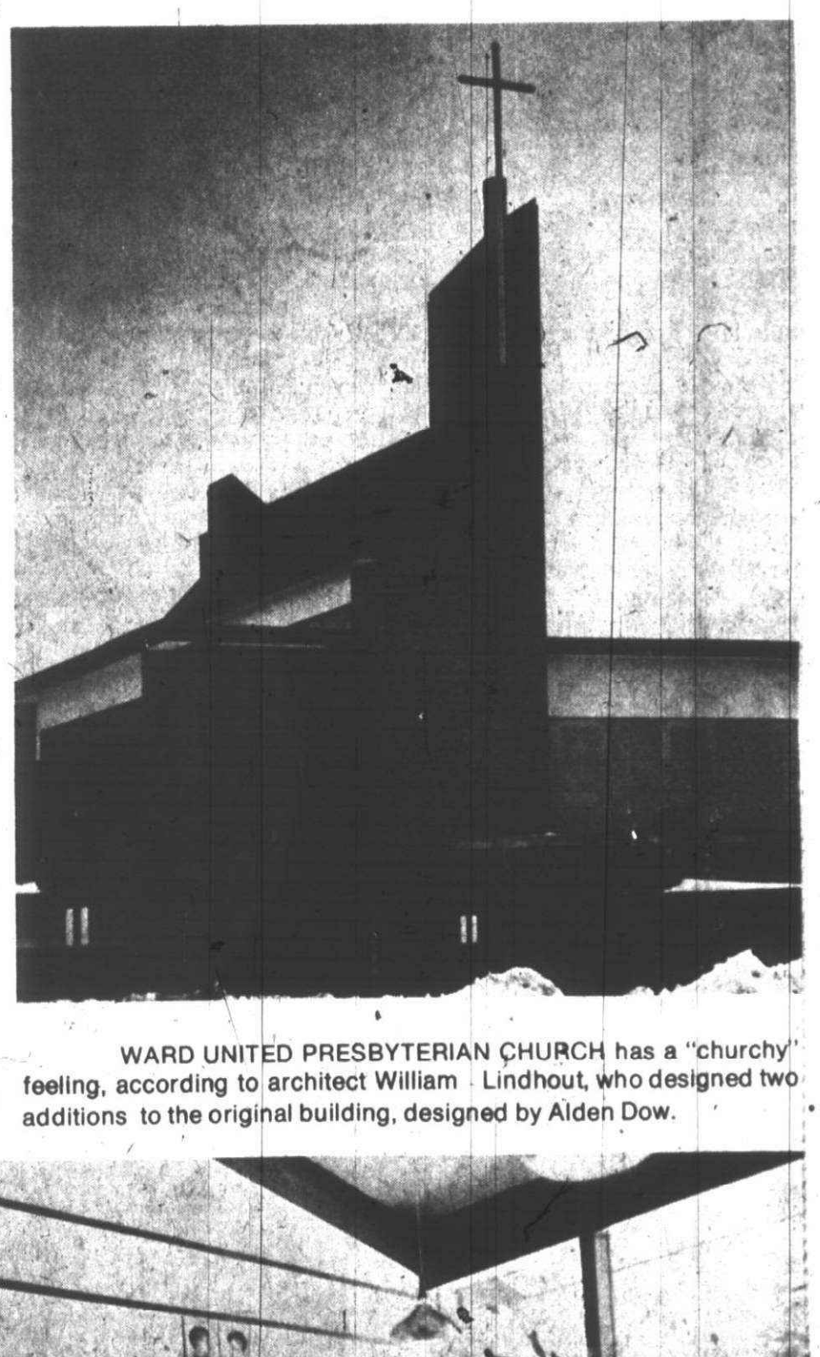
Lindhout designed Unity of Livonia, a church that stresses community feeling among its members, so that 250 congregants are seated within 25 feet of the lectern. Warm colors create a feeling of serenity.

LINDHOUT calls Plymouth City Hall and the Plymouth Public Library examples of "false front architecture." The buildings, designed in a colonial style, use fake stone and aluminum siding, where there should be wood, he says.

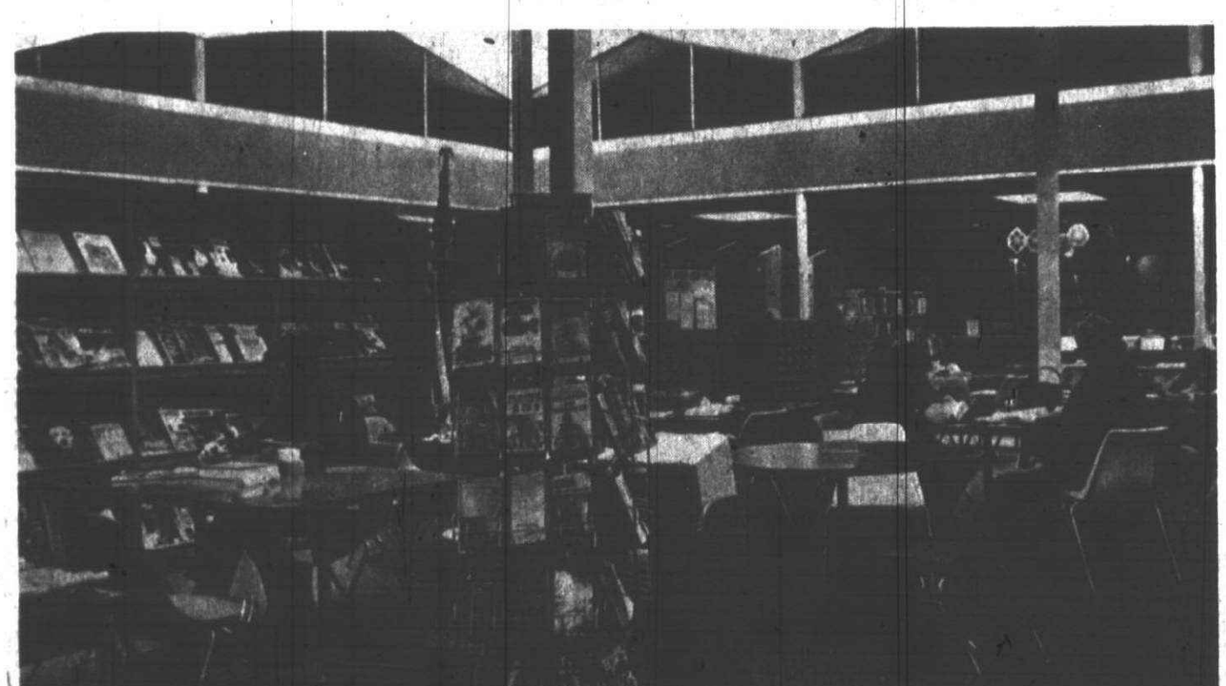
"It's what I was taught not to do," he stresses.

Lindhout admits, however, that he may criticize architecture too much.

"An architect views the community through a lot more critical eye than anyone else. There is a consciousness on everybody's part that art can be found in anything. Europe recognizes this to a greater extent. I think our sense of values will eventually go that way."



WARD UNITED PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH has a "churchy" feeling, according to architect William Lindhout, who designed two additions to the original building, designed by Alden Dow.



THE CARL SANDBURG branch of the Livonia Public Library has a feeling of friendliness and warmth, according to William Lindhout. (Photo by Mitchell Booth)

The Stroller

Confusion seen in year ahead

By W. W. EDGAR

The new year was only a few hours old when the phone rang. The old rural philosopher was calling to extend best wishes and reveal his thoughts for the coming year.

This call has become a ritual, and many a happy and educational moment we have spent discussing the strange twists and turns in life. Surprisingly, the old fellow has been as accurate in his predictions as the Farmers' Almanac. Some years he even has outdone the almanac that has become a bible to many of the old-timers.

THAT'S WHY it was so interesting to hear him comment, "I am so confused this year, I just don't know what to expect. Unless I miss my guess, this year will be a queer one—and anything can happen."

What did he find so confusing?

"Everything seems to be going topsy-turvy," he answered. "Can you imagine them raising school taxes when the enrollment is declining!

"AND WHEN a fellow pays his taxes, he can get depreciation on most everything but his home. Those tax people figure a fellow's castle is like wine— it gets improved with age.

"Wasn't it only a few years ago that the law required all waitreses to wear nets so their hair wouldn't get near the food. Now, these young fellows with hair down to their shoulders are the cooks. And they don't have to wear hair nets? Is there anything more confusing than that?"

The old gent, whom The Stroller has known for years, was just warming up. He had many more reasons for being confused as the new year starts.

"I HAVE never seen anything like our present economy," he went on. "We have a spiraling inflation. The cost of everything is going up. We have more money than ever and find we can't buy much with it.

"But isn't having money much better than the days when he had 'hard times' and no money?" The Stroller cut in.

" Maybe so," the old philosopher continued, "but what good is it if you can't buy anything with it? Can you imagine people in long lines at the welfare offices picking up food stamps because they can't afford to buy at regular prices and then see on television the farmers killing and burying cattle because they can't afford to raise them?"

TRYING TO FIND a bright spot, The Stroller suggested he might buy anew car at a good price now that inventories are so high.

It only incensed the old gent a bit more as he looked ahead to the new year.

"What a confusing thing that is," he commented. "We build automobiles like fury— more than ever — only to find that we may not be able to use them because of the fuel shortage.

"Not only that, but thousands of cars are on the dealers' lots, and inventories are higher than ever. Then the bottom falls out of the market. Surely somebody goofed.

"That's what makes it so confusing. Certainly someone along the line should have known there was a risk of a fuel shortage and that we were dependent on outside sources. But they let us go ahead and build automobiles.

"Now they're raising the price of gas and even talking about putting a heavy tax on it. Why? Just so the people won't use their automobiles. At the same time they are discouraging people who might want to buy a new car, despite the high price."

The old gent cleared his throat before continuing.

"TALK ABOUT confusion," he concluded, "The farmer can't afford to raise cattle. People can't afford to purchase meat. They make it more difficult to drive your car, and they claim the new models in 1976 and 1977 will make all of our cars obsolete.

" Now my brother tells me he can't afford to buy fertilizer to raise his crops.

"And you want me to predict what will happen in the new year?"

He seemed to hesitate a moment, then answered:

"It could be a queer one — but it should be interesting."

And a happy new year to you, too.

New arrivals at the library

Esther Dendel "The Basic Book of Fingerweaving." Easily worked and totally involving, the joyful pursuit of fingerweaving as a craft yields practical and decorative results that are astoundingly intricate and beautiful. A skilled and patient teacher, Esther Dendel starts with an explanation of the basic concepts of fingerweaving, and of how to set up yarn strands for flat or cylindrical projects.

Complete with step-by-step line drawings and photographs, the following chapters introduce fingerweaves from all over the world. Two final chapters describe how to widen, narrow and shape for special use, and how to finish off ends securely and decoratively.

Roy Doliner "For Love or Money" Lou Greff is proprietor of "Greff's"— the most famous Jewish restaurant in New York. When Lou arrives in heaven, he finds a lot of his former customers, who have no place to eat and long for a piece of Greff's roast brisket.

They decide to let Lou return to earth for one week to try to reassemble his old staff and raise enough money to open a "Greff's in the Sky". What follows is an amusing series of adventures.

Alice D. Serrell, for 37 years personal secretary to Sarah Van Hoosen Jones.(Photographed by Dick Kelley)

Sarah Van Hoosen Jones played a blue-chip part in putting Michigan among this country's top agricultural states. Her credentials show why. She was the first female student in the agricultural department at the University of Wisconsin at Madison. She drew constant accolades from Michigan's farming interests for her innovative farming techniques. And she was always opening up her 400-acre complex for public tours, many of which were taken by Detroit's underprivileged youngsters. Her pet project? A snappy farm store called "At the Sign of the Black and White Cow."

By ROBERT A. SKLAR

AVON TOWNSHIP— Folklore richly colors talk of the old farm store called "At the Sign of the Black and White Cow" in historic 151- year-old Stony Creek Village.

Store proprietor was the late Sarah Van Hoosen Jones. The fifth generation descendant of the township-pioneering Taylor-Van Hoosen family was widely acclaimed as Michigan's premier female authority on dirt farming and cow breeding.

Dairy products, homemade items and antique wares could be found at the store, located for 14 years on the southeast corner of East Tienken and Jones Roads in Section 2.

The store opened with fanfare in June, 1938. It served as the major trading post for the high-quality milk, cream, butter and eggs produced on the 400-acre Van Hoosen Centenary Farm in Sections 11 and 2.

THE ANCESTRAL farm was long one of the midwest's most productive, innovative and profitable agricultural operations. It bordered pastoral Stony Creek.

In its heyday, the farm employed 20 field workers and featured two barns, one of which is still standing at Romeo and Runyon Roads. The farm frequently provided a source of enjoyment for school- and community-sponsored hiking groups, including many from Detroit's underprivileged neighborhoods.

Manager of the farm store was Alice D. Serrell. For 35 years, the 68-year-old township resident was personal secretary to Miss Jones. She lived with Miss Jones from 1952 until Miss Jones' death in 1972 at age 80 in the farm's central residence at 1005 Romeo Rd. Miss Serrell now lives there with her cat, 'Lightfoot.

A herd of 225 Holstein-Friesian cows, brought in from across the globe, and 2,000 laying hens, purchased from a farm near Holland (Mich.), furnished the foundation for the farm's success.

See related story,

MILKED AT least three times a day, the cows produced certified vitamin-D milk. Comparable to modern grade-A quality, certified milk meant milk pasteurized and bottled on the same farm.

Van Hoosen Farm sold the bulk of its milk to approximately 25 creameries around metropolitan Detroit for eight to 10 cents a quart. The creameries resold the milk for 25 cents a quart. The farm also supplied milk to Harper and Grace hospitals in Detroit.

Eggs from the farm were sold to the creameries for 10 to 15 cents a dozen. Boxed on the farm, the eggs were resold for up to three times as much.

To broaden its clientele, the store soon expanded, stocking homemade items on consignment from more than 100 village and township residents. The store kept 10 per cent of the money it took in on each sale.

BESIDES DAIRY products, perishable items included fresh herbs, turkeys and chickens. Non-perishable items included brass candlesticks, hot-pan holders, quilts and rugs plus crocheted and knitted caps, jackets and aprons, along with antique glass and china ware.

None of the items was manufactured or industrially processed except Vermont maple sugar candy, which proved tremendously popular.

Miss Serrell says she remembers the store's early days vividly. She says when Miss Jones hired her in 1937, the store was still in "the dream stage.

"Miss Jones said we may take in $4 to $5 a day," recounted Miss Serrell. "But after the store opened, we averaged 60 to 75 customers on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays during the summer and took in $400 a day."

THE STORE was open 362 days a year, closing on Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day. Miss Serrell and Miss Jones were the store's only full-time employes. The late Elizabeth Spencer would fill in whenever either of them couldn't work. The building that housed the store was divided into three sections— a five-room cottage, farm offices and the store.

Before the store's opening, a general store sat on the same corner for nearly a century. When that store was torn down to make way for the farm store, much of its timber and sheeting was salvaged and re-planed for use in the new store's construction.

In November, 1952, the store closed permanently. Miss Serrell says the closing came within a few years after Elizabeth Spencer moved to California, where she died.

"Miss Jones and I reached the limit of working full time," Miss Sherrell said. "We didn't have any competition. That's what practically worked us to death."

FOLLOWING THE store's phasing out, Miss Jones auctioned off the cow herd. She and Miss Serrell proceeded to concentrate their energies on traveling around the world. They continued to do genealogical research.

The building that housed the store still stands. It has been redesigned into two apartment units; both are rented out with rent payments going to Michigan State University (MSU), current owner of the farm site. The school has made no firm commitment for redeveloping the site.

Miss Jones deeded 300 acres of the farm to MSU in 1956; she retained a life lease on the acreage. In her will, she left the farm's other 100 acres to MSU.

Miss Jones' ties with MSU ran deep. She belonged to MSU's board of agriculture for 12 years (1944-55) while the school was an agricultural college. Whenever she needed veterinary assistance, she visited the school's East Lansing campus.

WHAT'S MORE, Miss Jones represented MSU on and was past president of the Association of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions. And the farm near Holland from where she purchased hens was owned by the Hannah family; son John A. Hannah is former MSU president.

Miss Jones had strong ties in Oakland County too. She was on the Stony Creek and Rochester school boards and was an advisor to the planning committee for Rochester's centennial celebration in 1969. She also was active in the Oakland County Pioneer and Historical Society and in the Rochester Business Woman's Club.

Miss Jones assumed complete management of her family's farm in 1926. In addition to breeding cows and raising chickens, she cultivated corn and alfalfa hay.

Miss Jones was graduated from the Chicago public schools. She went on to receive a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Chicago plus a master's degree in animal husbandry and a doctorate in animal genetics from the University of Wisconsin at Madison. She was the first female student in Wisconsin's agricultural department.

AS A graduation present, Miss Jones received the deed to the family's farm from her ailing grandmother, who died within a week of handing over the document. That was in 1921. A trip to the Orient with her mother, aunt and cousin followed for Miss Jones. After their return home in 1923, Miss Jones helped supervise the farm's renovation.

Miss Jones' mother, Alice, lived on the farm until her death at age 96 in 1951. Miss Jones' aunt, Bertha, was a nationally renowned Chicago surgeon. The University of Michigan Medical School alumnae died at age 89 in 1952.

Miss Jones' father, Joseph Comstock Jones, was superintendent of schools in Pontiac and Saginaw; later, he worked for two different school-book publishing companies. He died at age 56 in 1897.

Maintaining the Van Hoosen tradition, the farm, encompassed Miss Jones' singular ambition in life, according to Miss Serrell.

As she put it, "Miss Jones never wanted anything out of life except to be on the farm of her grandparents, Joshua and Sarah Taylor Van Hoosen.

"WHEN SHE was four, her mother made her overalls like the workers. And she would go with the hired men into the pasture to bring in the cows."

The original land grant to Stony Creek Village, signed by President James Monroe, was given to Miss Jones' great-great-grandfather, Rev. Lemuel Taylor of Aurelius, N.Y., in 1824.

Two years earlier, Rev. Taylor's son, Elisha, came upon the rustic valley and rushing creek in the township while prospecting for land. He went back to Aurelius with fascinating stories about them. The next year, in 1823, 60 members of the Taylor clan resettled in the township, platting homesteads and naming the village and creek, Stony Creek.

In 1972, that turn of events won lasting recognition when the National Park Service added Stony Creek Village to the National Register of Historical Places.

MRS. FLORENCE SHARP

MACLD to hear Mrs. Sharp

Mrs. Florence (Dinghy) Sharp, speech pathologist and tutorial consultant with Farmington School District, will address the Livonia-Redford chapter of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities Wednesday, Jan. 8.

The meeting will be held in Franklin High School, 31000 Joy, Livonia, at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Sharp will include in her talk a demonstration of the Bucket Brigade work she initiated.

It is a tuturial service that began in the Farmington special education department and has spread to special ed departments in many school districts. Volunteers work with elementary school children on a one-to-one basis to help them overcome difficulties they encounter in school work.

Mrs. Sharp's education background includes a BA in elementary education and secondary certification in the teaching of speech and English. She has masters degrees in speech pathology and audiology from Northwestern University.

Mach 2 Industries of Livonia has elected Bobbie L. Green as president and John C. Weiss as vice president.

The company manufactures long and short run screw machine products.

Milliken approves drunk law change

Two years from now, the town drunk no longer will be regarded as a criminal by police.

Gov. William G. Milliken has signed into law two bills which decriminalize public intoxication and replace imprisonment with treatment.

After Jan. 1, 1977, there will be no civil or criminal penalties for public drunkeness—unless another crime (like drunk driving) is committed while the person is under the influence of alcohol.

INSTEAD OF jailing persons appearing to be drunk, police officers will either take them home, to an emergency medical service facility or to an approved service program.

A person could not be detained at a medical center more than 72 hours, or beyond the time a physician determined he or she was no longer incapacitated.

A person also could voluntarily seek admission to an approved service program for treatment. If financially able, the patient would pay for the service. If not, the state would bear the costs.

TO MAINTAIN the flow of money in the economy, Milliken also signed a bill which permits increasing the finance charge on the sale of new vehicles from $6 per $100 per year to $7 per $100 per year. It raises the effective annual interest rate from its present level of 11.08 per cent to 12.84 per cent.

The law does not affect credit union or direct bank financing, but applies only to financing which is intitiated and handled by an auto dealer.

"Without an adequate return on loans, the money simply will not be available to would-be buyers, and the last thing we need right now is to have buyers walking out of the showroom because the dealer could not arrange financing for them," the governor said.

OTHER BILLS signed by the governor in December include:

- Two laws to allow Blue Cross and Blue Shield to merge.
- A law which recognizes the following hand signals by the driver of a vehicle: left turn—hand and arm extended horizontally; right turn—hand and arm extended upward; stop or decrease speed—hand and arm extended downward.
- A law which allows townships to take over private roads with the consent of the county board of commissioners and 65 per cent of the adjacent landowners.
- A law which amends the judges' retirement system by allowing credit for prior service by a member who has served as a municipal judge. It reduces a judge's contribution by 50 per cent, reduces the number of years service needed for eligibility, raises the benefit to a maximum of 75 per cent of salary and increases benefits to retired judges when the salary of active judges is increased.
- A law which permits students to sit on the governing boards of Michigan colleges and universities, and exempts them from the conflict of interest statute.
- A law increasing the salary of county juvenile officers and assistant county juvenile officers by $4 per day for those on per diem pay, and $1,000 per year for those on salary.
- A law eliminating the requirement for all children participating in group activities, such as camps, to have tuberculin skin tests or smallpox vaccinations.
- A law increasing the amount of time off allowed for good behavior at the Detroit House of Correction.
- A law changing the names of various state mental health agencies to reflect a change in attitude toward treatment of the mentally handicapped.
- A set of laws allowing credit unions to establish safe deposit departments.

Urban experts to teach WSU course

Concerned residents, city planners or planners-to-be can sit down with urban experts and explore the politics and problems of city government and management.

Wayne State University, through its university studies and Weekend College Program, is registering adult students now for its winter quarter of urban studies. The course begins Jan. 6.

Urban Studies will focus on the forms of city government, examine Detroit's new city charter, and explore the many problems associated with urban management and structure. The course was designed with the cooperation of WSU's Center for Urban Studies.

William D. Smith, director of city planning for Detroit and former faculty member of the Center for Urban Studies, and Chester Lewis, principal planner for Detroit, will join other experts in presenting the course.

Urban Studies is one of the study years of a four-year college program utilizing daily television programs, weekly workshops, and quarterly weekend conferences.

Local artist fashions modern sculpture

Germaine Keller of Garden City feels Detroit and suburban-based artists are using this area's rugged industrial personality to create a new art expression.

"Art in the metropolitan area is exciting. It's characterized by a brute energy found only in an industrial community," says Mrs. Keller. "If it is avant garde type art you are looking for, New York is the place to go, but for industrial art it's Detroit."

EXAMPLES OF industrial expression are found in the Michigan Focus art show now through Feb. 9 in the Detroit Institute of Arts, Grand Rapids Art Museum and the Flint Institute of Arts.

Mrs. Keller's untitled wood construction is one of 38 pieces on display in the sculpture division at Detroit.

Some 1,500 Michigan artists competed for $10,000 in prize money in three categories. Judging was by a jury of four critics from New York, Philadelphia and San Francisco.

Although she didn't win a cash award, Mrs. Keller feels honored the jurists liked her work.

"This was my first major show, and with some 3,400 entries I was surprised and pleased my construction was accepted."

HER ENTRY consisted of 12 curved slates fashioned from a single plank of fir wood and arranged against a wall.

"The slates are simple, yet elegant. The curve is characteristic of that found throughout nature. The slates' purpose is to investigate order and form."

The wood sculpture took about three months to complete, says Mrs. Keller, and is one in a series of slate constructions she is designing.

Mrs. Keller is presently a graduate assistant in the sculpture department at Wayne State University. She received BFA and master degrees in art from the University of Michigan and is currently a MFA candidate at WSU.

She plans to teach art at the university level. Mrs. Keller also is the mother of three children ranging in age from 10 to 16. She has taught art classes in the women's division at the Detroit House of Correction in Plymouth Township.

SHE ENJOYS sculpture because "it gives an unlimited view of art, not just two dimensions. Sculpture is not limited by media." She adds that most of her construction is done with either plater, plastic or wood.

Besides the Focus exhibit, a biennial competition, Mrs. Keller says Michigan artists don't get enough exposure.

"There are very few major shows and even fewer galleries in which area artists can exhibit their work."

Mrs. Keller criticized the Focus show for its size and conservative art selection.

"A lot of artists were looking forward to this show, and many were disappointed because it was so small. Some 3,400 works were entered, and only 146 were finally accepted. The artist community in Michigan is active, and art entries are evidence of that.

"Many artists also were concerned because four jurists were assigned the task of judging some 3,400 works. It's physically impossible to look at all that art with a really sensitive eye," contends Mrs. Keller.

'Young Frankenstein': hilarious horror

ON FILM

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Someone has finally put reins on Mel Brooks so that the excessive qualities of "Blazing Saddles" were avoided in his new production, "Young Frankenstein."

As a result, about 90 per cent of what he tries works.

Don't let the ads fool you. This movie will not frighten anyone under 12; possibly not anyone at all.

That doesn't mean familiar sights from its parent film about the creation of a monster are not thoroughly in evidence, and just as thoroughly milked.

THE AWESOME castle stands on the Transylvanian hill with its double door knockers and air of menace. Thunder rumbles reliably both on the left and right, and lightning flashes, just as they always have.

There are cobwebs, hidden doors, and a panorama of equipment — dials and switches that very clearly could draw life from a stone. It gives one faith in the permanence of things.

But it all comes out in a blend of satire, vaudeville and borscht belt slapstick, the good kind.

Gene Wilder, one of the most reliable of the Brooks stable of players, plays the young Frankenstein, who is trying to live down the looney reputation of his ancestor. (Wilder also helped write the script). But he too succumbs to the lure of bringing the dead to life.

Whereupon he does things with electricty from lightning undreamed by Ben Franklin, to say nothing of Detroit Edison. His monster, played by Peter Boyle of "Joe" comes to life, and of course, to nothing but problems, problems, problems.

Scurring around the corners of the great experiment is the reliable attendant, Igor, beneath whose misshapen body and hump, lie the soul of a swinger.

As played by Marty Feldman, Igor can do more with a cape than any matador.

A STRANGE, harsh Germanic lady appears, the very mention of whose name causes horses to rear up and cry in fear. She is around about 10 minutes before you realize that behind the unyielding countenance is Cloris Leachman, an actress who can completely lose her own identity in a role.

Madeline Kahn is a woman whose sacred hair, lips, fingernails and body cannot be touched before her wedding. At least not by her finance.

Gene Hackman stars in a brief vignette, which would be the funniest moment in the film, except for the dart-throwing sequence.

As a hermit who sees even less than Mr. Magoo, he would naturally be the one to befriend a neighborhood monster on the lam. But as he hospitably pours his guest's soup anywhere but in the bowl, it becomes plain why he is not the greatest host ever produced by his native land.

Kenneth Mars comes on strong as a teutonic Dr. Strangelove, troublesome arm and all.

It has long been known that Mel Brooks could make the ridiculous sublime. But occasionally he has stumbled and only made it ridiculous.

He has strengthened his reputation with this film. He maintains the mood and he builds jokes, most of which turn out wildly funny.

Village offers imaginative play

By SANDRA ARMBRUSTER

The pageantry, villainy and intrigue when King Arthur claimed his rightful place as heir to the English throne, comes to life for children viewing The Greenfield Village Players production "Young King Arthur."

Written and directed by Joseph French, this version of the classic tale is better understood by an older age group than previous Village plays such as "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Peter Pan." Delighted chuckles and frightened gasps, however, come from all members of the small audience.

This production is better than last year's plays. Acting is considerably more professional, and the actors are more easily understood. Costuming is both luscious and grubby for the appropriate parts.

THE PLAY OPENS with a comic sword fight between Sir Kay, portrayed by Douglas Berry as the son of Sir Ector, and squire Arthur played by Scott Maitland. Mischievous Merlin the Magician enters with his comic inability to remember to use doors.

Performances by Merlin and the outstanding portrayal of scullery maid Barbara by Irene Schweyer provide the comic relief needed to keep the play moving and soften the battles which keep children on the edges of their seats.

Ms. Schweyer and Spinwhittle, a dull-witted squire played by David DuChene, do an excellent job of involving the audience in the play, and heightening their excitement and frustration with the actors. This helps make the play an enjoyable introduction to live theater at an early age.

PROVIDING THE most dramatic performance is M. Brownlee Vosgerchian as Morgan Le Fay, sister and Nemesis of Arthur. Ms. Brownlee works with the Livonia School District CAMEO project which provides artists-in-residence.

Her willfully wicked portrayal contrasts well with Arthur's innocent sincerity.

The production will be presented at 2 p.m. Saturday matinees on Jan. 4, 11, 18 and 25 in the Henry Ford Museum Theater, Dearborn.

Art lecture in Farmington

Jr. Joseph Gutmann, professor of art history at Wayne State University and adjunct curator of the Detroit Institute of Arts, will be guest speaker at Sholem Aleichem Institute Oneg Shabbat, Friday, Jan. 17 at 8:45 p.m. in the Labor Zionist Building, 28555 Middle Belt Road, Farmington.

Symphony opens New Year show

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will open the new year in Ford Auditorium, Detroit, on Thursday, Jan. 9 at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday, Jan. 12 at 3:30 p.m.

The Friday and Sunday programs will include two works for piano and orchestra—Bach's Clavier concerto No. 1 in D major and Richard Strauss's "Burleske," and Dvorak's symphony No. 8 in G major.

Tickets for Friday's concert are available at the Ford Auditorium box office, and all Hudson's and Grinnell's ticket offices. Tickets for Sunday's performance are available at the Ford Auditorium box office.

Near-zero weather good sign ice will be safe for fishing

By LEM MESEE
Outdoors Writer

Watch for a good night or two of near-zero weather. That's the sign the ice will be safe for fishing.

Ice forms slowly in normal winter weather. It's usually dangerous unless you really know your lake well. But if we get that deep chill— well, be sure your spud or auger is sharp, and have your new fishing license.

State parks and recreation areas have been good for sledding and snowmobiling for some time.

FROM THE GOOD Natural Resources officers come some tips on where to catch 'em at this season, and some interesting ones at that.

Remember Belleville Lake, which was chemically treated and restocked? Well, they're predicting "good to excellent" catches of panfish this winter.

Other good panfishing spots are the old reliables: Kent, Sylvan, Pontiac, Cass and Loon lakes in Oakland County; Whitmore and Woodland in Livingston County; and Lake St. Clair, if you care to travel that far east.

Kent Lake pops up in a surprising category. It's expected to produce northern pike through the ice this year. Years back, when the modern Kent Lake was produced by damming the Huron River, it was an excellent pike spot, but later the carp messed up pike grounds. Quietly in the last couple of years, the DNR has been restocking pike in Kent.

Other pike spots will be Cass, Oakland, Lakeville and Pontiac lakes in Oakland County.

You might land a musky at Heron, Tipsico or Pontiac lakes in Oakland County or from Woodland and Whitmore in Livingston County.

A few stray steelhead may be in the Huron River at Flat Rock this winter and the north branch of the Clinton River below 27 Mile Road bridge in Macomb County.

OLD WIVES' tales die hard. A popular one in the upper peninsula is about Little Red Riding Hood and the wolf. People still believe the wolf part and act accordingly.

The sad news is that the lone survivor of last spring's timber wolf transplant from Minnesota to upper Michigan was been found dead—killed.

The U.S. Interior Department said the young female's unmoving radio signal was picked up by Dr. William Robinson's research team from Northern Michigan University. A Michigan DNR officer located the corpse in dense woods two days later. She had been shot in the leg and head and — get this — her tag and radio collar removed. Fortunately, she was identified by a hidden tag elsewhere on the body. The radio tag had been shot off the animal and was no longer transmitting.

Anyone who has read Buck Tales, the periodical of the deer hunters association, knows how deeply and even pathologically they feel about wolves. They know wolves are vicious killers of deer. No one and nothing can tell them different. Wolves an endangered species? They're pleased.

All four transplanted wolves were either shot, trapped or run over within seven months of their release, and so the project was a failure purely in terms of wolf survival.

But the Fish and Wildlife Service of our friendly federal government says it has evidence indicating transplanted wolves are capable of maintaining pack identity, establishing territories and searching for food successfully when introduced into new areas.

Can a viable population of the endangered timber wolf be reestablished in northern Michigan? The evidence seems to be that Mother Nature may be willing, but the local folks aren't.

Tanner named DNR director

Dr. Howard A. Tanner has been appointed director of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

He will officially take office Jan. 15 as a successor to A. Gene Gazlay who died June 30.

Hilary F. Snell, NRC Chairman, says: "With the utmost confidence, the commission knows it has selected the right man to carry natural resource management in Michigan through this, the most challenging period in its history."

Snell also said Tanner was perhaps best known for his credentials as a "dynamic, innovative resource manager when he served as chief of the department's fisheries division from 1964-66.

"Since those days with the DNR, Tanner has cut an even higher swath in the multi-dimensional field of environmental work. Noteworthy on this score, he has spearheaded a unique wastewater recycling project at MSU. As another mark of his talents, Gov. Milliken named our new director to the Michigan Environmental Review Board which he now chairs."

Tanner now serves as director of natural resources in the college of agriculture and natural resources at Michigan State University.

Tanner, a Kalamazoo native, received a BS degree in 1947, an MS in 1950, and PhD in 1952, majoring in fisheries and limnology at MSU.

OCC offers seniors credit

Full college credit courses at the Orchard Ridge campus of Oakland Community College are open during the winter semester to area high school seniors with good academic records.

Seniors can register for classes offered in the late afternoon or evening by checking the winter schedule for the day and time of the desired class. These courses carry full college credit and can be transferred to any college in the country since OCC is fully accredited.

Interested seniors should obtain a high school guest application from Orchard Ridge or their high school counseling offices and submit a $12 fee and the signature of their high school principal indicating his approval.

Registration will be open from Jan. 2-10.
